PAY CUTS FEARED TO BE NECESSARY FOR CITY SCHOOLS

Department Is Expected To Lose Approximately
$100,000 Through Elimination of Mill Relief Levy

A possible reduction in salaries of the Atlanta school department loomed yesterday as members of the board scanned the financial outlook for 1939.

At a meeting of the board, the Rev. H. J. Penn declared "we've got to do some retrenching either by cutting salaries or reducing personnel."

If salary cuts should be necessary, the board member said he was in favor of starting with the executive branch of the department. He explained, however, that he was not in favor of salary reductions if they could be avoided.

"We are topheavy in our executive branch," he asserted. "We have too many persons with supervisory positions. We are going to run into some difficulty if we adopt a budget such as we adopted last year."

T. W. Clift, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of business administration, agreed the outlook was "blue." He said the department would lose approximately $100,000 through elimination of the one-mill tax levy for relief.

The board took no action in re-

CLARK GABLE'S WIFE WILL ASK DIVORCE

Actor Is Silent on Romance
With Lombard.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 13.—(P)—Clark Gable said tonight his estranged wife, Mrs. Rhea Gable, probably would file suit for divorce as soon as the courts legally interpret their property settlement that was effected three years ago.

The property settlement is scheduled to be heard tomorrow. Under terms of the settlement, it was understood, Gable has paid Mrs. Gable, his second wife, approximately $286,000.

"As soon as the court rules on the settlement I shall ask Mrs. Gable to institute divorce proceedings," the screen star said tonight. "There certainly will be a divorce."

Gable would not comment on reports that he intended to marry actress Carole Lombard, his frequent companion at sports and social events. One year must elapse between the interlocutory and final decrees for a California divorce.

Gable is 37 years old. His wife is 46.

MITES FOR MADDOX SLATED FOR TODAY

Rome Lawyer and Banker
To Be Buried in Myrtle
Hill Cemetery.

ROME, Ga., Dec. 13.—(P)—Funeral services for G. Ed Maddox, former chairman of the state Democratic executive committee, will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning in the First Presbyterian church here.

Mr. Maddox, a banker and lawyer, died of a heart attack at his home here last night. He was 63.

The Rev. John Melton and Dr. E. R. Leyburn will conduct the services. Burial will be in Myrtle Hill cemetery.

Out of respect for Mr. Maddox, an outstanding member of the Rome bar, Floyd city court was adjourned today until Thursday morning by Judge John W. Bale.

Palbearers will include Dennison Hull, Roland Parker, Dan Hanks, Maddox Hand, Dick Hand, George Walker, Robert Norton and Julian Cunningham Jr.

There will be on honorary escort, no honorary pallbearers. Rome barbers probably will attend the funeral en masse, along with other hundreds of Mr. Maddox's friends throughout this section of the state.

Surviving Mr. Maddox are his wife, Jessie, and three children; two daughters, Mrs. Mose E. Brinson, of Summerville, and Miss Mary Norton Maddox, of Rome; two sons, John and William Maddox; sister, Mrs. Berta Maddox Hand, of Rome, and five brothers, Judge James H. Maddox, Dr. Robert Maddox, Linton M. Maddox and Frank Maddox, all of Rome, and Dick Maddox, of Portland, Oregon.

BANS ON 'ISMS' PLANNED AT LIMA

Foreign Activities and Minority Agitation Would Be Barred.

LIMA, Peru, Dec. 13.—(UP)—Delegates to the eighth Pan-American conference, united on the principle of opposition to foreign aggression and democratic propaganda in the New World, today considered resolutions protesting racial and religious persecution and denouncing alien political activities in the Americas.

The conference steering committee met and approved three resolutions for submission to tomorrow's session.

The resolutions were:
1. A Cuban resolution protesting racial and religious persecution of the activities of minorities in the American republics.
2. An Uruguayan resolution regarding foreign political activities in the western hemisphere.

The Uruguayan project would provide for a declaration that "it is incompatible with the existence of the sovereignty of each country to permit any foreign doctrine, legal mandate or act of a foreign government that tends to intervene in national life to regulate the situation of persons living in the territory of another state."

The Cuban resolution against racial and religious persecution, which has found considerable support among the several delegates, obviously was aimed at German treatment of Jews and other religious groups.

The Brazilian resolution which would deny special political rights to alien minorities, also was believed aimed at Nazi infiltration.

Children's Frequent Colds

For relieving discomforts of chest colds and night coughs, rub VapoRub on throat, chest and back at bedtime. VapoRub's poultice-vapor action relieves local congestion—eases muscular soreness or tightness—helps the youngster relax into restful sleep.

For coughing and irritated throat caused by colds, put VapoRub on the child's tongue. It melts, trickles slowly down, soothes the throat with soothing medication. Then massage VapoRub on throat and chest.

For "influenza" and misery of colds, melt a spoonful of VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water. Have the child breathe in the steaming vapors. This loosens phlegm, clears air-passages, makes breathing easier. Also massage VapoRub on throat and chest. Millions of families use these three time-tested ways to relieve the misery of colds.

JOBLESS BUREAU PERSONNEL DINES

Rivers Tells Them Their Is Responsibility To Prove Taxes Are Justified.

The personnel which will handle unemployment compensation benefits in the state beginning next month were guests last night at a dinner given by the Georgia State Employment Service.

It marked assembling in Atlanta from 33 Georgia cities and all counties of supervisors, managers, senior and junior interviewers, and clerks. Benefits become effective January 1.

The personnel gathered here Monday to receive instruction and training in handling the payments. More than 225 state employees attended the dinner, including 80 persons from the Atlanta office.

Marion A. O'Connor, state director, presided, and Ben T. Huie, commissioner of labor, introduced Governor Rivers, the only speaker.

Governor Rivers gave a brief history of the unemployment compensation benefits, and told the audience theirs was the "task of proving that the taxes which made the benefits possible were justifiable."

Employees will resume their final day of training today.

RAMSPECK CONFERS FOR SCHOOL FUNDS

PWA Promises To Consider
Murphy and Maddox
Junior Projects.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(P)—U. S. Administrator Howard A. Gray today promised Representative Robert Ramspeck, of Georgia, that he would give further consideration to an application by the board of education of Atlanta for a substantial loan and grant to construct the proposed Murphy and Maddox junior high schools.

Both of these projects were included in the bond issue which recently failed in Atlanta. In view of this failure, Atlanta's board of education, Mr. Ramspeck said, is desirous of having the Works Progress Administration allot funds for at least initial units of the schools.

There is a regulation that WPA cannot allot more than $25,000 for any one project. The proposed Murphy and Maddox schools are estimated to cost at least a quarter of a million dollars each.

Representative Ramspeck also discussed an application of DeKalb county for a loan and grant of $2,000,000 for a waterworks system that would serve newly developed urban centers around Atlanta and Decatur which now have no waterworks systems.

Deputy Administrator Gray said the matter had been referred to President Roosevelt's National Resources Committee for a full report. PWA has a regulation, Mr. Ramspeck learned, that requires all applications for waterworks funds to be referred to the resources committee before final loans and grants are authorized.

Mr. Ramspeck, who has been in Washington for several weeks getting his committee work ready for the opening of congress in January, will leave for Atlanta next Thursday morning for a stay of three or four days. He will return to Washington early next week to spend the Christmas and New Year holidays with his family.

LIBRARY CONTRACT LET BY EAST POINT

Linwood Structure Will Cost
$21,413.

A contract to construct a library building at a cost of $21,413, was awarded last night to Hardin & Ramsey, of Atlanta, at a called meeting of East Point city council.

Work will begin at once. The building will be completed in three months. It will be situated in the civic block, facing Linwood avenue, and with one side on West Cleveland avenue.

Funds will be furnished both by East Point and the federal government. The structure will be 40 feet by 63 feet.

FREEZING WEATHER FORECAST FOR TODAY

Heavy clouds, freezing temperature this morning, and rain, probably tonight is the gloomy, wintry weather forecast for Atlanta today.

The skies will be gray and smoke will hang in a grimy pall over the city, weather bureau officials predicted cheerfully. A low reading of 32 degrees is expected this morning. Yesterday's high and low readings were 46 and 40 degrees.

15 MILLION LOANED FOR SOUTH AMERICA

U. S. and New York Banks
Provide Funds To Expand
Communications.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(P)—A $10,000,000 loan to expand United States-owned communication facilities in South America gave impetus tonight to the Roosevelt administration's program to promote solidarity in the western hemisphere.

The loan, to which New York banks will add another $5,000,000, was announced late today by the Export-Import Bank. It will go to the International Telephone & Telegraph Corporation.

The loan was the largest ever made by the bank, which is a subsidiary of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. It brought to approximately $20,000,000 the amount of money the bank now has invested in Latin-American business ventures.

The loan followed by only 24 hours a disclosure by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau that he was studying the possibility of direct loans from the United States Treasury to the Latin-American republics for trade promotion.

It was learned that the lending power of the Export-Import Bank had been expanded to permit the large communications loan. The bank's lending is limited to the amount of its capital stock, which formerly was only $21,000,000.

The law creating the bank, however, permits the RFC to buy additional stock of the bank upon the approval of the secretary of the Treasury and the President.

The amount of additional capital furnished was not disclosed, however. Officials said they were unable to name the countries in which the $15,000,000 would be spent.

The International Telephone & Telegraph Corporation operates in Brazil, Argentina, Chile and Peru.

Meanwhile, Cuba is reported to have requested a $50,000,000 loan. Warren Lee Fierston, chairman of the Export-Import Bank, is scheduled to go to Cuba at the end of this week to study loan possibilities there.

'Starved' Guests Invited To Dine With Ragsdale

County Commission Chairman
J. A. Ragsdale yesterday passed an order:

"No breakfast and no lunch tomorrow."

As a farewell to his chairmanship of the police committee, he "ordered" all members of the department "not actually on duty" to report at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon for a dinner at Casa Rio, a fashionable roadhouse, near Boulevard.

Officials at the courthouse and other commissioners also were included among those invited.

"I just want the boys to be hungry enough to enjoy the food," he said in explaining the fasting order.

JOHN LEWIS VEAL, PARK WORKER, DIES

Had Been Department Employee 35 Years.

John Lewis Veal, 57, of 153 Vannoy street, S. E., an employee of the city park department for the past 35 years, died in a private hospital last night after a brief illness.

He was taken to a hospital in the afternoon and died within a few hours of heart disease.

A native of Stone Mountain, Mr. Veal had been living in Atlanta for 43 years. He was the park department's oldest employee in point of service.

Surviving are his wife, three sons, Floyd T., John L. Jr. and James M. Veal; two sisters, Mrs. Mamie Denton and Mrs. F. A. Huie, and one brother, A. A. Veal, of Charlotte, N. C.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by Harry G. Poole.

Purse, $9 Snatched; Loser Wants Her Pin

A woman whose purse containing $3 was snatched in a downtown drugstore yesterday said it was "O. K." to keep the money and she hoped the thief would have a nice Christmas.

But—added the victim, Mrs. Estelle Burns-Vasary, of 107 Sixth street, N. W., she wants returned a sorority pin which was in the purse.

"If the pin is returned, I'll be perfectly satisfied," said Mrs. Burns-Vasary. "The person who took the purse probably needed the cash more than I do. But I want that pin."

The purse was taken from a table while Mrs. Burns-Vasary was telephoning in a booth.

HOSPITAL PLANS $300,000 DRIVE TO ADD 100 BEDS

Georgia Baptist Heads Elect Fuller Chairman, Discuss Campaign To Expand Work of Unit.

Preliminary plans for a campaign early next year to raise $300,000 for proposed additions to the Georgia Baptist hospital were discussed here yesterday at a meeting of the hospital commission which has charge of the institution.

Dr. Ellis A. Fuller, pastor of the First Baptist church, was elected chairman, succeeding the late Dr. W. H. Major. Other members of the group are James W. Merritt, executive secretary of the Georgia Baptist convention and secretary of the commission, the Rev. H. C. Whitener, of Buford; Wiley L. Moore and I. M. Sheffield Sr., of Atlanta.

Expansion of existing facilities was termed imperative by W. D. Barker, superintendent of the hospital, who also meets with the commission.

"Increased patronage of the hospital and the enlarged charity service," he said, "make it necessary to provide for more beds and more complete facilities to meet the steadily growing demands which we are required to face."

Barker pointed out that permission for the $300,000 campaign was granted at the recent meeting of the Georgia Baptist convention and said it was hoped that solicitation of funds could be started shortly after the first of the year.

The program being considered includes at least one new building to provide an additional 100 beds as well as additions to the equipment of the present plant.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 13.—(P)—Testimony that her deaf-mute husband used abusive terms to her—in the sign language—won a divorce today for Mrs. Elizabeth Gage, 30, also a deaf-mute.

Through an interpreter, Mrs. Gage told Judge Sylvain Lazarus her husband, Arthur, a mechanic, called her names and nagged at her, by means of signs.

COX STUDIES FATE OF POSTS IN HOUSE

Georgian Returns to Capital for Conference With Rayburn.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS, Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Representative Eugene E. Cox, of Camilla, Ga., arrived in Washington today to remain until the opening of the new congress January 3.

He said he came here this week to confer with Representative Sam Rayburn, of Texas, majority leader of the house, over proposed matters of legislative procedure.

As second ranking majority member of the important rules committee of the lower chamber, Judge Cox is anxious to learn if the Republican party is to be given increased membership on his committee. The November 8 election not only retired to private life the present chairman of the committee, but also eliminated from the house Representatives Arthur H. Greenwood, of Indiana; William J. Driver, of Arkansas; and Byron B. Harlan, of Ohio, all Democrats.

Not only this, but if Representative Joseph W. Martin, of Massachusetts, first ranking minority member of the committee, is named in place of Representative Bert Snell, of New York, who declined to stand for re-election, which now seems possible, it will mean that Martin will have to give up his rules committee membership.

If, as is now contemplated, Republicans are given increased representation on the committee, it will mean that not fewer than four new Democratic members will be named, with two, or three Republicans added to the committee.

RAY R. POWERS DIES IN BERLIN HOSPITAL

Former Atlantan Had Become One of Leading Businessmen Abroad.

Ray R. Powers, former Atlantan, who had been living in Europe since the World War and was considered one of the most successful American businessmen abroad, died yesterday in a Berlin hospital. He was 56 years of age.

Mr. Powers, a brother of Mrs. John F. Glenn, of Atlanta, was injured in an automobile accident Thanksgiving Day, suffering several bone fractures, but was thought to be recovering. Death resulted from pneumonia.

A native of Brooklyn, N. Y., Mr. Powers moved to Atlanta in his early youth. He was for several years associated in business with his father-in-law, the late A. B. Steele, in the management of the old Atlanta-St. Andrews Bay railroad.

Served in War.

In the World War, Mr. Powers went overseas as major of a machinegun battalion and saw much active service. Mustered out after the Armistice, he was impressed with the business opportunities offered in Europe and decided to make his home there.

Ray R. Powers Jr., one of his two sons, left Atlanta Monday after a three-month visit with Mrs. Glenn and was to have sailed for home from New York last night.

Mr. Powers is survived by his wife, the former Alice Steele, and another son, Steele Powers.

Ralph McGill, executive editor of The Constitution, declared yesterday:

"I am deeply shocked to learn of Mr. Powers' death. He was unquestionably one of the finest men I've ever known and I feel that I've lost a real friend. His years in Europe didn't make a European out of him. He was a truly great American."

C. F. Palmers Attend Dinner At White House

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS, Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Palmer, of Atlanta, were among the guests at a White House dinner tonight, given by President and Mrs. Roosevelt in honor of members of the cabinet and their wives. The Palmers attended the first state function of the season.

The dinner was attended by scores of great wealth like Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller Jr., by political leaders and by newspaper reporters.

Secretary and Mrs. Morgenthau were the ranking guests. But many eyes turned toward Secretary Ickes and his 25-year-old wife, who was attending her first official function as a cabinet wife.

"It's very exciting," Mrs. Ickes said, chic in a shimmering green lame with an old-fashioned cameo at her throat and her red hair done up in braids.

Youngest and most picturesque was 18-year-old Eleanor Roosevelt, done debutante present.

The entertainment was the introduction by one of Mrs. Roosevelt's dance proteges of the new "Eleanor Glide."

Blond Mayris Chaney and her partner, Edward Fox, showed the brilliant company how the polka, mazurka and old-fashioned barn dances Mrs. Roosevelt likes can be used in modern ballroom dancing.

Earlier in the day Mr. Palmer, former president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, attended a luncheon at the National Press Club in honor of Anthony Eden, former British foreign minister, now on a brief good-will mission to the United States.

Mr. Palmer joined Philip Weltner, chief of the Atlanta Housing Authority, in a series of conferences with officials of the United States Housing Authority on the $14,253,000 allotment recently made to Atlanta for housing projects on four sites designed to accommodate 2,438 families. Mr. Palmer is chairman of the Atlanta Housing Authority. Both he and Mr. Weltner, a former chancellor of the University System of Georgia, said the conference merely touched legal details of the project and that no obstacle was expected to develop that might retard the program.

seeking to have legal control of the company transferred to them. The stock is worth "at least $500,000," the suit set forth.

The suit filed yesterday seeks consolidation of the two sections. A hearing on the original suit had been set for Saturday in Marietta.

James H. Therrell, of the firm of Kennedy, Campbell and Therrell, said the second suit sets out that "because of Mr. Tate's mental incapacity due to his last illness," the transfer of stock was "wrongful and adverse to the interests of heirs and creditors alike, if any contract of sale exists."

CHAPPERAU DENIES SMUGGLING CHARGE

Mystery Man Acts in Face of Co-Defendant Burns' Plea of Guilty.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(P)—Albert N. Chaperau, "mystery man" of a smuggling scandal that already has involved such personages as Comedian George Burns and a judge's wife, intimated today that he had no present intention of talking about his supposed acquaintance with other entertainment stars.

Chaperau, heavy-faced and impassive, pleaded innocent to the newest indictments against him, despite the plea of guilty made yesterday by Burns, his accused co-defendant in one case. Chaperau had made the same plea to an earlier indictment which also named Mrs. Edgar Lauer, wife of a state supreme court justice.

Nothing official was said by government investigators about Chaperau's decision to fight both cases, but privately they let it be understood his action had lessened the possibility of widening the official investigation to include the testimony of various Hollywood stars.

During the day a federal grand jury proceeded with its inquiry while Colette d'Arville, an artist who has sung with the Metropolitan Opera Company, was interviewed by Assistant United States Attorney Joseph Delaney.

Maid Angered.

Miss d'Arville appeared voluntarily, and it was made clear she was not a suspect. The conversation was understood to have concerned the circumstance that she was a dinner guest of the Lauers when Rosa Weber, a German-born maid, was said by Chaperau to have created a scene because of table talk in denunciation of Adolf Hitler.

Chaperau, who says he is of Jewish extraction, has described himself as a victim of the malice which he says arose in the maid because of her discharge by the Lauers. An affidavit by the maid aided the government's investigation of smuggling.

The government's claim is that Burns and Mrs. Lauer, convicted with Chaperau to obtain foreign goods duty free, Chaperau having been pictured as the actual carrier.

pointed out, and declared that without this asset (the stock in question), the estate would be in a critical condition. Mr. Therrell said the plaintiffs urged that a receivership be established to protect the rights of heirs and creditors.

The suit filed yesterday describes also the transfer of real estate in December, 1937, valued at approximately $50,000, for what was described as a consideration of $1,000. This transaction also was challenged as void and illegal, and the suit seeks the return of the property covered.

Creditors allege that the 10,074 shares of stock were given by the late marble magnate as collateral for a loan of $10,000, and were not intended to convey control of the company to the three, the first suit sets out.

Judge Hawkins had previously issued a temporary restraining order preventing the three defendants from disposing of the stock in question, and also restraining the Georgia Marble Company from turning over control to them.

Creditors Named.

Three creditors of Mr. Tate, who died October 11, are listed in the suit as the estate of the late Lester Holden (Dr. John P. Turk and Alex Anderson, administrators) and J. M. Eubanks and Carter Parker.

Their suit sets out the 10,074 shares were formerly worth $1,007,400 on the market and are now worth at least $500,000.

The Holden estate seeks collection of a $8,000 note, allegedly executed by Mr. Tate, while Eubanks seeks collection of $4,916.02 on a note for $7,418.63, and Parker is attempting to collect $2,500 on a $3,800 note.

They charged in the suit that Mr. Tate had a note for $25,000 at the Trust Company of Georgia last May. When the bank called for payment, they alleged, Steve Tate and Mr. and Mrs. Benton supplied the money. Real estate holdings in Pickens county were given to obtain $15,000 of the amount, while the 10,074 shares of stock in the marble company were put up as collateral for the remaining $10,000.

Will Address Scouters

Arthur Cundy, of Birmingham, To Address Club.

Burns asserted through counsel that he innocently bought the jewelry for whose possession he was indicted. He is the husband of Gracie Allen and is her "straight man" as well as a weekly Friday night radio program which features Miss Allen's studied inanities. It was indicated the program would continue without interruption.

CIVITAN TO SPEAK AT SCOUT MEETING

Arthur Cundy, of Birmingham, To Address Club.

Arthur Cundy, secretary of Civitan International, will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Scouters' Club at 8 o'clock tonight in the Peachtree Arcade.

A resident of Birmingham, Cundy is a widely known and accomplished speaker, and was once an associate of Sir Baden-Powell, originator of the scouting movement. Cundy has spoken before more than 500 schools, colleges and civic organizations on behalf of the Boy Scouts.

Open to the public, the meeting will also include the election of a new slate of officers, and a musical program.

IMMIGRATION STAND.

TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 13.—(P)—United States Senator Charles P. Andrews, Democrat, Florida, said in a talk here today he would oppose any increase in the immigration quota of any foreign nation. His remarks were made before a civic club luncheon.

GEORGIAN, 18, HELD IN MYSTERY DEATH

Youth's Father-in-Law Dies
Under Wagon; Grand Jury To Probe Case.

DONALDSONVILLE, Ga., Dec. 13.—(AP)—Sheriff C. L. Chandler said today he was holding an 18-year-old youth listed as Joseph Gilson on a coroner's jury recommendation pending grand jury investigation into the death of Gilson's father-in-law, C. D. Powell, a farmer.

Chandler said Powell was killed when knocked from a wagon load of hay. The sheriff said Powell's daughter, Gilson's wife, was riding with Powell and that they were moving the hay from their Semole county home to a new Early county residence.

ATLANTA'S BUDGET SHEET PREPARED

Tentative Schedule Calls for Lower Expenditures in 1939 Operations.

Atlanta's 1939 budget began to take more definite form yesterday as the budget commission completed its detailed consideration of the finance sheet. It will go to the finance committee for study early in January, Alderman Ed A. Gilliam said.

The budget commission made few changes in the tentative sheet prepared by City Comptroller B. Graham West. Tentative spending was estimated at $10,027,000, compared with last year's $10,520,000.

One department calling for a decided increase was the department of pensions. An additional $39,000 over last year was requested for pensions. The comptroller said this increase was due largely to a recent decision of the supreme court affecting pensioners.

Deliberations on the tentative budget of the police department led to a discussion of the need for more motorcycles in combating the traffic problem. The police department asked for $10,000 for new cars but asked for no new motorcycles.

Mayor Hartsfield declared no traffic system would function satisfactorily without a sufficient number of motorcycles. Alderman Gilliam insisted the present 26 motorcycles should be used in shifts so as to get the full benefit from them. He said the practice of parking them overnight prohibits the department from obtaining their full usefulness. Members agreed to consult Captain Jack Malcom, head of the city traffic bureau, on the matter.

PATENTS FOUND AID TO U. S. MONOPOLIES

Laws Enable One Group To Control Any Industry,
O'Mahoney Says.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Chairman O'Mahoney, Democrat, Wyoming, of the monopoly committee, said tonight that the evidence thus far received raised the question whether the patent laws should be revised to keep a single company from using them to acquire control of an entire industry.

"The striking thing to me," he said, "was the demonstration that congress, to which under the constitution was delegated the power to regulate commerce among the states, has by the patent law delegated to any group that chooses to use the patent law in the way that it can be used, the power to regulate commerce in any industry."

He made his statement to reporters after two days spent investigating the glass container industry. His inquiry had produced testimony that the Hartford-Empire Company, by holding patents on essential processes, could say who should manufacture glass containers, could "stabilize" prices and could prevent what its officials termed "ruinous" competition.

Further testimony was received that the company's patent rights were rigorously defended by extensive litigation. In addition, over the protest of company officials, documents were introduced to show that the company had a policy of "fencing in" competitors by finding out what improvements were possible in the latter's machinery and securing patents on them.

Further, with S. F. Parham, patent attorney for Hartford-Empire on the stand today, the committee learned that one "basic" patent in the production of glass containers was applied for in 1910 but was not issued until last year because of a long process of litigation. The result is that the patent will not expire until 1954.

HORNBY PROBES BEATING CHARGE

Grand Jury Requests 'Third Degree' Investigation.

Police Chief M. A. Hornsby yesterday began an one-man inquiry into reported use of "third degree" methods by Atlanta police officers, but last night had failed to find "anything."

Hornsby was visited during the day by Capus B. Brewer, secretary of the November-December Fulton county grand jury, who told the chief that a negro witness had charged police with beating him to obtain information.

J. Bowie Martin, foreman of the grand jury, said the body decided not to establish a committee to follow up the matter, but "thought the same thing could be accomplished by communicating with Chief Hornsby."

Brewer volunteered to take the matter up, according to reports, and the grand jury dismissed the matter at least temporarily.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP)—The Labor Department reported today that the retail cost of food declined four-tenths of 1 per cent between October and November.

ATLANTA, GA., DECEMBER 14, 1938.

HAVE YOU EARS TO HEAR?

There is, today, a knock at the door of every Atlanta heart. There is an urgent appeal for help, reaching out to every one blessed with understanding spirit. There is a cry from lips of women and of little children. And, as background to that cry, is the admonition He gave His followers, near two thousand years ago, "he that hath ears to hear, let him hear."

That cry comes from the sorrow-wrung hearts of the mothers and their babies, from the crippled and the helpless fathers, too, of the little families that constitute the "Ten Opportunities" of Atlanta for the year 1939. For the Christmas of 1938.

The stories of those ten opportunity families are told, day after day, on Page One of The Constitution. They are not too pleasant stories, to read. For they are stories of little families sinking fast into the depths of social submergence. They are stories of children underclad and hungry, stories of homes that must be broken up, unless someone comes to the rescue.

Through the years it has been the privilege of The Constitution to bring to the great heart of Atlanta these annual opportunities for the finest form of charity and of social reconstruction that generous men or women may know. Each Christmas, for almost a score of years, ten such helpless families have been laid, by this paper, upon the doorsteps of more fortunate Atlanta. Each year the knocks have been heard, the doors of the hearts have been opened and the opportunities have been accepted.

As a result of that response, there are today in Atlanta almost 200 happy, independent, self-reliant and good homes which would not have been in existence had Atlanta turned deaf ear to the annual appeals.

It is the custom of The Constitution to select these ten opportunity families each year, on the basis of need, of worthiness and of promise. Then the amount needed, by each family of the ten, to lift its budget to fit the need each month of the coming 12, is carefully worked out. Most of them have some scant source of income of their own. But it takes $20, or $40, or $50 per month more, to bridge the gap between what they have, or can already get, and what they must have for decency and health and safety and a chance in life.

Then the stories are told. For the family that needs an added $20 per month, the appeal goes out for $240 to supply them for the year. For the family needing an additional $50 per month, the call is for $600 for the year. And so on.

It is true constructive charity. Contributions that mean rehabilitation, that lift such families out of the category of the needy into the ranks of the self-supporting.

It is charity and help not only for a day—even though that day be Christmas—but charity for that day and for all the days to follow, for the year to come and for a lifetime.

So far Atlanta has never failed to answer the call. This year the stories are again being told. The response has already begun. Checks have come in, from this generous one or from that. But, so far, the stream of gifts is too slow. The hearts have not yet opened wide enough to answer the knock of these blessed opportunities.

"He that hath ears to hear, let him hear."

And, when you have heard, you shall hear once again, His voice, saying,

"Verily I say unto you, inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

THE KILLING DISEASE.

The Wai Wai Indians of northern Brazil have a word of advice for tired businessmen and distraught housewives: Stop worrying and you'll reduce heart troubles, make your high blood pressure go down and miss cerebral hemorrhages.

Dr. William Hall Holden, chief surgeon of the American Museum of Natural History, who early this year made the first medical study of this aboriginal Indian tribe, reported last week he found none of the ailments most common to civilized people among the Indians who live in "a country of peace and quiet, a literal lost world, a tropical fairland."

Since the beginning of the twentieth century there has been an increase in heart diseases among businessmen. It is common to read of hard-working, apparently healthy, executives falling out without a word, victims of heart trouble. Psychiatrists and surgeons long ago declined worry was the principal cause of new diseases in this complicated world.

Proud civilization, with its lights, its noises, its soft food and its hard life, its worries and its heartaches, may learn a lesson from primitive people who live in Stone Age homes. It is the lesson that worry is probably the most killing disease of all.

THE CROP CONTROL VOTE

A happy balance was struck Saturday in the crop control balloting of southern farmers. Cotton will again operate under marketing quotas, while tobacco will enter the market as a free product. Rice growers also decided to let their product find its own level. These last two depend more for price upon individual factors than does the first, and it is only natural that the break with quotas came in those products, just as it might be expected that cotton farmers would favor the alleged protection of a marketing ceiling. Tobacco and rice enter the market with little reservation, while cotton depends largely upon a steady demand.

The independence of the tobacco and rice growers reflected, too, the methods determining control and the lack of heavy surpluses. Cotton, for example, is entered under quota by designation of acreage—27,500,000 acres for next year—while tobacco and rice are entered through a limit upon the number of pounds which may be sold. This brought considerable dissatisfaction last year to Georgia tobacco growers because production per acre had increased so much they were forced to enter the market with surplus poundage. There were estimates at that time which placed production per acre at 125 per cent of normal. It was a reflection of better methods and a concentration on a better grade, but the stumbling block came at the market, where farmers paid a penalty for good farming.

The defeat of the marketing provisions, however, should not result in an inordinately heavy increase in the production of the leaf, since acreage control will continue to operate through another phase of the farm program, that of soil conservation. Any overage, however, will be permitted to enter the market as a free agent, and find a price range of its own, rather than being dependent upon a quota system which has proved awkward and unduly burdensome in many instances.

A salient feature of the voting was the insight it afforded to the democratic process at work, and the glimpse it presents of the staunchly individualistic attitude of the farmer. There is inherent in the results a revelation that the farmer is gaining a more complete understanding of the methods which have been devised for his aid, and that he is thinking things through in an intelligent way. The vote has kept control in a field which requires it, and abandoned it in the case of products which, there is good reason to believe, do not require it.

A RELIABLE BUSINESS BAROMETER

In times when the average business index is likely to prove unreliable, the old barometer—railroad car loadings—always can be relied upon in a material way. During the week ending December 3, car loadings, that is, cars of freight hauled by rail carriers for revenue, reached a new peak for the year 1938.

The total loadings for the week were 649,086 cars, an increase over the previous week of 87,002 cars or 15.5 per cent. The loadings were measured in miscellaneous, as well as in less-than-carload freight. An improvement was registered in all classes of tonnage hauled except ore.

Based on the years 1929-30 as 100, the peak week of 1938 registered 71.3, compared with 69.8 for the same week in 1937. An increase of one week only over another, as a rule, means very little. But the high point—71.3—is more significant when it is remembered the low week of the year registered only 55.7, the lowest point reached at any time during the past five years.

Too many of the charts relied upon to indicate the rise and fall of the nation's business tide are in the nature of forecasts—predicated upon a number of factors not always immune from human miscalculations—rather than an indication of what is actually happening. Railroad car loadings, issued weekly by the Association of American Railroads, point definitely and tangibly to what is actually taking place. For this reason car loadings have always been considered the most reliable indication of returning good times.

For an uncontrollable wink due to an automobile accident, an English jury awards a fair plaintiff $7,500, which is the equivalent of winking back.

It is five years this month since congress, though unable to whip the depression, gave us a beer to cry into.

COLOR SCHEMING FOR PROFIT.

(From The Richmond Times-Dispatch.)
The plant under which the state will inaugurate a grading and inspection service for agricultural commodities, on a far more comprehensive scale than before, is a blue-ribbon idea for which J. H. Meek, director of the state division of markets, deserves the credit. The federal and state marketing services have, of course, been co-operating before, but Mr. Meek has worked out a plan through which this program of co-operation will be extended to the inspection and grading of many new commodities, and by which the buyer will be made quality conscious. A blue seal bearing the map of the state, superimposed upon that of the United States, will be placed only upon products meeting the highest requirements of the quality standard. The red seal will be placed on products of second highest quality, and so on.

Under this new system of grading and inspection, with its distinctive color scheme, housewives and merchants will soon become conscious of the rather marked differences in the quality of some commodities from the farm and the barnyard which are now indiscriminately lumped together as belonging to a common and invariable group. Differences in the quality of eggs are not widely recognized now among nonprofessional buyers, so there is often no particular incentive for the farmer to buy the best poultry. When the differentiation is made for them by state and federal agencies, themselves interested in the production of high-grade farm commodities, a great many people now buying "common to medium grades," will buy the blue seal goods.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

COURT CHANGING VIEWS WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—"Unitary government" for a unitary economy" was the slogan adopted by Tom Corcoran and Ben Cohen when they wrote the wage-hour law. They merely meant a national authority to deal nationally with national economic problems. A long line of supreme court decisions, notably that in the child-labor case of Hammer vs. Dagenhart, denied the existence of such national authority. It was the intention of the President's twin advisers, in drawing the wage-hour law, to force the high bench to reverse Hammer vs. Dagenhart or throw out the new statute.

Now it would seem that the justices have got in their licks before being confronted with the handiwork of Messrs. Corcoran and Cohen. A week ago they were recorded as giving its "first setback" to the National Labor Relations Board. In an opinion by the chief justice, they reversed an NLRB order voiding a contract between the Consolidated Edison Company of New York and the AFL. Hostly detractors of the bench jumped to the conclusion that the court was once more living up to the celebrated remark of Mr. Dooley.

Actually, as one or two shrewd observers have pointed out, the really striking section of the chief justice's opinion was a long argument virtually destroying the precedent of Hammer vs. Dagenhart. It can now be positively said that the court has abandoned the extreme states' rights view. Only Justices McReynolds and Butler, who dissented in the Consolidated Edison case, still hold to the ancient theory that, however needful certain legislation may be, it can be enacted only by the states. A broad interpretation of the general welfare powers now prevails.

HALFWAY, WHOLE HOG Quite naturally, since its full meaning has become apparent, the court's new doctrine has caused vast excitement among the New Dealers. The reason may be observed in the chief justice's discussion of the vital importance of Consolidated Edison's business, especially in supplying power to such other public utilities as the railroads.

"It cannot be doubted," he said, "that these activities, while conducted within the state, are matters of federal concern. In their totality they rise to such a degree of importance that the fact they involve but a small part of the entire service rendered by the utilities in their extensive business is immaterial in the consideration of the existence of the federal protective powers. (The potential disruptive effect on commerce between inter and intra-state commerce. It is halfway to the adoption of a new theory, that, in times like ours, when the national economy is so complex and interconnected, all business is subject to federal regulation, whatever its size or locale.

The court's new position, therefore, is that, if they are big enough, businesses cannot be intrastate under the law even though they may be in fact. Such a position is a good halfway toward the abandonment of the old distinction between inter and intrastate commerce. It is halfway to the adoption of a new theory, that, in times like ours, when the national economy is so complex and interconnected, all business is subject to federal regulation, whatever its size or locale.

NATIONAL LUXURY In connection with the justices' change of front, it's worth recording that the states' rights problem is slowly coming to be an obsession in several influential New Deal groups. Naturally, the New Dealers are not states' rights men. That is not their line.

Their anti-states' rights argument may be summed up in a simple question—"In a world so hazardous as ours, how long can the United States afford the luxury of a strictly federal government?" It is pointed out that many of the great New Deal statutes have been rendered insanely complex by the necessity of meeting states' rights requirements. The powers exerted have not been weakened. But the method of administration provided has resembled a Milt Gross machine. The social security law is perhaps the most striking case in point.

Another often-cited phenomenon is that of taxation. Recently one of the treasury experts had occasion to remind the President that the total annual tax bill paid by the people is nearly $15,000,000,000, or far more than twice the sum collected by the federal government. That is about a quarter of national income, and the New Dealers assert that, if such a sum were efficiently laid out, it would cover all the expenses of government, both local and national, including such unbalancers of budgets as national defense and relief. Whether or not you agree with New Dealers, their ideas are interesting signs of the times.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

To pay the bills long overdue
Stirs honest souls to pride,
His true,
But creditors should write, by

To say, "that's swell. Thanks for the check."

Spurlos

Versenkt!

During Germany's submarine war against merchant shipping, in the war days of 1914-18, the "Spurlos Versenkt" gained wide notoriety. Meaning, in English, "sunk without trace," it was too frequently embodied in the reports of U-boat commanders to the German navy department.

But how many things are, apparently "spurlos versenkt," in everyday life. It is all too true. Take, for instance, those checks you wrote with such a thrill of pride when, at long last, you were financially able to catch up with the overdue bills. It is a big day, a big moment for you, when you sign the checks, envelope them and put them in the mail. Then what happens?

You don't hear another word about them, from anyone. They might just as well have been written, or have faded into thin air, save for their brief reappearance, cancelled, in the bank statement at the end of the month.

Triumph

Of Honesty.

Now the mere sending of those checks has proven, or should have, that the payer is honest. And, being an honest man, the long overdue-ness of the accounts has caused him worry and mental anguish all the weeks and months.

Then, at last, the peace comes when he gets the bills. Insignia the thrill it gives him! He sits at his desk, writing checks and addressing envelopes and he feels that his accomplishment is something really big.

He remembers, perhaps, the letters he has received from collection managers of his creditor places of business. The letters that were so nice, the first month he was overdue. And that got a little more urgent, a little more pressing, with each succeeding month.

He's stopping those, anyway. And he mails his envelopes, filled with checks and with pride. What happens? Nothing!

Nary an Appreciation.

Not a word at all the recipients of his long—and hard sought—money so much as drops him a line, or telephones a message of appreciation, or thanks. Oh, yes, the dunning letters stop coming. His mail shrinks, perceptibly. But that is the only result.

It seems to me that it would be a valuable builder-upper of goodwill for any business establishment that would adopt the practice of sending a note of thanks for checks received—particularly overdue checks. Just to make the delayed checkwriter feel that someone appreciates his triumph, at any rate.

Something like:

"Dear Bill:

"Got your check and sure appreciated it. I knew all along, old man, that you'd send it just as soon as you could. Regret you've had a tough time, for the past few months, and hope things financial are getting a little easier for you.

"It's swell to receive a check from a friend, especially when that friend had to make a real effort to pay his unavoidable debts. That again, I believe, means I do appreciate the thing you've done and all it must have cost you.

"Incidentally, old fellow, your credit is unimpaired by the delay in payment, for I know you couldn't help it and I know, too, you never willingly over-stretched your credit. Therefore, anything you want that I've got, is yours on the old 'charge it' terms.

"Thanks, again."

Percentage

Of Bad Accounts.

Incidentally, was talking the other day to the manager of a branch store of a well-known chain-store firm of clothing. Asked him about the percentage of honesty among their charge account clients.

"For the entire country," he said, "bad debts represent less than 1 per cent of our business. About 60 per cent of our total is credit trade, the other 40 per cent in cash. We lose less than 1 per cent. That speaks for the honesty of the American public, doesn't it?"

Twenty-Five

From the news columns of Sunday, December 14, 1913:

And Fifty

Years Ago.

From the news columns of Friday, December 14, 1888:

"Washington, December 13.—Mr. Butterworth, of Ohio, introduced in the house today, for reference, a joint resolution authorizing the president to negotiate with reference to unity and assimilation with the United States of the Dominion of Canada, or one or more of the provinces thereof."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Explosive NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Probably nothing could be done about this by law, but the employers of this country and the politicians who control appointive positions could spread the available work much greater advantage if they would make a practice of refusing to hire women who do not actually need the work and would gradually eliminate such women from their pay rolls. This would affect married women whose husbands are able to support them in reasonable security and comfort and a great number of single women who take jobs merely to have something to do until they marry and having married, after a few years, retain their positions in competition with necessitous males who have dependant families. Certain individual alimony clients also would be included.

Of course, each case would have to be judged on its particular merits, and labor unions probably would intervene in some cases to protect the jobs of dues-paying members selected for dismissal in favor of men.

It is an explosive topic, as anyone may learn by introducing it in private conversation in mixed company, but the fact cannot be denied that many family units have more jobs than they need while many others have none, and thus enjoy luxuries while the others lack bare necessities.

Proposed The proposal is no stranger in Washington, where, on being presented a few years ago, it was denounced as vicious on the ground that virtuous citizens of both sexes in the government employ would be compelled to forego holy matrimony and live in a state of sin to avoid economic injustice. This seemed to place a cash prize—and not a very flattering price, either—on the virtue of those for whom the plea was offered, but that was a delicate phase of the subject, and emphasis was placed instead on the horrible road that Uncle Sam would lay in forcing honorable American girls into a life of shame.

Nevertheless, there are in Washington, as well as in most other centers of the public service down the country, courthouses and town halls, many married women, the wives of able and steady providers, who hold jobs that might otherwise be given to heads of families with no injustice of impairment of the public service.

From that time that women first entered business in considerable numbers they have had a depressing effect on wages. Employers first engaged them as a type of coolie labor—widows left penniless and the daughters of poor families, paying them wages which they had to accept because they were in want. The young modern-woman type came next, crowding into the employment market to take jobs which otherwise might have been given to men but in many cases without any real necessity.

The Result So in time it came to be said, Matrimonially and with truth, too, that young men were not able to propose marriage and undertake family responsibilities because they couldn't make the enough money. The fact has been, however, that the presence of so many women, possibly pinning for marriage, in the job market has depressed their own chances of matrimony by curtailing the supply of jobs and the level of wages for men.

Obviously if a young woman does not need work for her actual support, but takes a job only to supply herself with luxuries and spending money, she need not hold out for a salary suitable to the work, and it certainly is no secret that employers take advantage of the fact that an applicant lives at home and is not the provider for the family.

Generally speaking, this proposal would eliminate no woman or girl in actual need of her wages, although it would be construed to that effect. It would, however, ease out of the employment market a vast number of more or less dilettante workers, many of them drawing sufficient pay to support a family in decent condition, and make room for unemployed men with responsibilities.

It can be accomplished only as a practice, not by law, and, naturally, some occupations would have to be exempted entirely. It may be conceded without an argument, for instance, that the field of dancing in night clubs and world's fair attractions is safe for the distaff side even against the competition of jobless young males from the dramatic societies of Harvard and Princeton.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MC GILL.

A FEW MEMORIES CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Dec. 13.—For no real reason whenever a fellow comes back to his home town for a visit, he falls into the vice of reminiscing. Chattanooga is not exactly my home town. I was born on a farm not so far from here and spent enough time there to be able to bust middles with some fair accuracy. But that always sounds something like a prelude to an announcement for office. Besides it may be in violation of the copyright. For all I know some politician may have copyrighted the phrase, "I was born on a farm."

The McCallie school football team is to have its banquet tonight and asked me, as an old player, to come over and talk to the team and the alumni. It is somewhat distressing to come back to talk to a team, all the members of which were still to make their entry into this land of bunks and hazards when you yourself were going out for the McCallie team.

It was the fall of 1913, and I went out for the McCallie team and remained on it for four years. That was, I am frightened to realize, 25 years ago. The old landmarks look about the same. There are some trees missing from the campus. The buildings have filled up a part of the grounds. One of the youngsters now is a solemn member of the faculty. But Dr. Park McCallie and Professor S. J. McCallie look at the same. To my eyes they have not aged. That, at least, is comforting. Dr. McCallie looks just as young as the day when he said, "McGill, my geometry examination must have been unduly easy. Even you passed it."

It always is a bit difficult to decide what to talk about. I suspect the young players of today are so much better than I were 25 years ago there is nothing we could say about football. I might tell them about the time we put asafetida in the furnace and brought a goat up into the chapel but I rather imagine the students of today are interested in what's happening at Berlin and London and Paris and Rome, to mention just a few places, and very properly regard us of a quarter of a century ago as childish young things.

THE WORLD WAR I'll never forget how the World War came to me in 1914. Three of us had been camping over in Alabama for two weeks. We were in a very secluded section of the country and saw no visitors except for one trip to a cross-roads store.

When we got on the train a news butcher was selling newspapers. The first we knew of it was Germany was selling. That was the first we knew of it. I had just finished one year of prep school when I read that headline.

I think those of us who were just entering prep and high school in those days have had a handicap. We started out with the ideals and ideas of one era, came through a World War and were tested, at the very beginning of our maturity, into the post war period. It made things a bit more confusing.

It seems things other than automobiles and airplanes have been streamlined since 1914.

FOOTBALL THEN AND NOW My old quarterback, now a businessman at Dallas, Tex., came back for the football dinner. He is Sam Eaves. I hope, before the night is over, to deliver unto a section of his anatomy a good swift kick. I was a tackle and he as quarterback delighted in spurring on his line by administering a few kicks as they knelt for the charge.

One of the present day football teams, prep school or college, could tie one of the teams of 25 or 20 years ago into a well assorted lot of knots. Football has changed. The teams know more and play a more stylish, deceptive type game. Our play contained a great deal of inspiration and it may have been a bit more of the desired type of prep school sport. I don't know for sure.

I have had running through my mind all day one of the late Sarah Teasdale's short poems. It is called "Wisdom" and reads:

"When I have ceased to break my wings
Against the faultiness of things,
And learn that compromises wait
Behind each hardly opened gate:
When I can look life in the eyes,
Grown calm and very coldly wise,
Life will have given me the truth,
And taken in exchange my youth."

One feels that way, I am afraid, on coming back to a football reunion to speak to players who were not even born when one was playing. A host of memories come back, most of them good ones. Perhaps, after all, the boys of 1938 don't have so much on the class of 1917.

Ours was a turbulent period in which to leave school but the future is going to offer up some problems which will require some streamlined minds. Perhaps, after all, all things happen for the best. I still hope I can find the opportunity to catch that quarterback in the right position.

It Isn't the Apology That Matters, But the Contrite Heart That Prompts It

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

When the ancient went to the temple to pray for a blessing, he took one of his best lambs to offer as a sacrifice. To the cynic, whose shallow mind sees evil in everything, that was a racket whereby fat priests obtained an abundance of free meat.

To the scientist, it was merely good psychology; for one who had faith enough to make an offering would also have faith enough to think himself blessed.

But the sacrifice, if sincerely made, had a deep spiritual significance. By surrendering a prized possession, the worshiper attuned himself to the harmony of the universe.

That seems a rather lyrical way of saying it, but it would be difficult to find a simpler way of describing what happened. Man feels two natures struggling within him. One is the primitive animal nature, lustful, selfish and unprincipled; the other the finer nature of compassion, justice, nobility and unselfish service which our race has developed through ages of striving. One nature is an inheritance from the jungle; the other an inherited ideal and aspiration.

When man wishes to be governed by his better nature, the two handicaps most difficult to overcome are

AYRES FORECASTS GOOD YEAR IN 1939

Noted Economist Says Business Will Soar, Income Will Increase.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 13.—(UP)—American business will soar, without "inflation," for at least half of 1939, but a slump in public money output may cause a setback in the year's closing months, Colonel Leonard P. Ayres, vice president and statistician of the Cleveland Trust Company, said today.

Colonel Ayres, speaking over a nation-wide radio hookup before the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce, said 1939 "now promises to be a period of better employment, rising national income, and increased volumes of industrial production."

Optimistic about prospects for 1939, barring an "international calamity," Colonel Ayres said the present upswing will continue as long as government "pump-priming" continues, with building construction, trade and transportation enjoying expansion.

However, he warned against "buying" recovery with public funds, because recoveries, like depressions, use an "almost physical" momentum to carry them on until "fundamental changes in their impelling forces compel them to slow down and finally to reverse their course."

He said he could not see such changes occurring soon enough in 1939 to prevent the year from having "distinctly better" business activity than 1938. He said the 1938 upturn of industrial production volume had been "one of the most rapid and vigorous we ever have experienced."

Yule Dolls for Poor Children Indorsed by the Rivers

Governor and Mrs. Rivers yesterday graciously indorsed the plan of the Woman's Chamber of Commerce to provide thousands of poor children with dolls this Christmas by presenting Mrs. Clarence Bradley, Atlanta's "doll lady," with "Miss Georgia." The dolls will be added to the collection of toys being assembled by the Salvation Army for distribution Monday.

Traffic Accidents Decline Sharply; Drive Against Jay-Walkers Pushed

As Officers Book Five Motorists on Charges of Speeding, Malcolm Urges Drivers To Stay Within Limit But Not Go Too Slowly.

Records of a sharp drop in the number of traffic accidents, resulting in injury, and a new campaign against jaywalkers yesterday marked developments in Atlanta's drive to make streets safer.

Captain Jack Malcolm, head of the traffic bureau, disclosed that 14 persons were booked yesterday for jaywalking. He said the violations occurred Monday.

Five motorists accused of speeding were also booked, as the traffic officials warned drivers "to stay within the 25-mile-an-hour limit, but not drive too slowly."

"Driving under the limit causes congestion," said Captain Malcolm, "and loafing along at 15 or 20 miles an hour in sections where a real hazard in forcing other cars to pass the 'slow pokes.'"

"I believe that if motorists will observe the new speed limit, and exercise ordinary rules of safe driving, the new limit will accomplish its purpose in cutting down traffic fatalities and accidents.

"So far, results have been fine. Over the week end, there were only seven injuries caused by traffic accidents, and these were minor. There was none reported Monday, and only one reported yesterday.

"This is in direct contrast with the usual average of four accidents daily, resulting in injury."

Referring to the drive against jaywalkers, Captain Malcolm said: "The public should learn to cross at intersections, and on the proper lights. We intend to make cases against offenders, in efforts to show that the regulations must be observed. We don't mean to be tough, or seem so, but examples must be made in the interest of safety."

"We want to save life and limb," traffic police club, now 48 in number, has agreed to help her solve during 1939. Mrs. M. is determined during the coming year to find her own independence. She wants, as much as any father ever did and a darning sight more than the father of Jimmy and Ira, to become the breadwinner of the M. family. She is so determined that the Family Welfare Society and The Constitution are convinced Mrs. M. will succeed.

She is typical of the needy but deserving families that are selected each year for the Ten Opportunities.

And, the traffic policemen are typical of the generosity The Constitution meets when the 10 most deserving families are presented each year, at Christmastime. They haven't much but they give willingly.

Members of Club. Following are the "26 Club" members: O. W. Allen, Fred Barrow, E. L. Bettsell, H. D. Bishop, J. B. Bishop Jr., W. T. Blackwell, E. B. Brooks, Herman Clay, J. C. Clay, B. A. Caldwell, C. M. Cook, I. G. Cowan, J. L. Cone (recorder), H. B. Creech, M. R. Dodd, R. M. Ector, P. E. Edwards, G. Neal Ellis, A. F. Etheridge, J. D. Etheridge, H. D. Gaines, W. E. Hickey, J. R. Haney, J. R. Hardman, L. L. Hause, W. L. Jay, E. H. Johnson, Herbert T. Jenkins, M. G. Jenkins, I. P. Jones, R. F. Lawson, Harry McWilliams, Harry Maddox, J. J. Masters, M. B. Petty, Clarence Pearce, A. H. Scott, T. J. Sikes, J. H. Smith, T. M. Strubling, M. L. Thomas, E. T. Tamm, Lieutenant W. M. (Buck) Weaver, V. D. West, E. O. Williams, G. H. Williams, R. E. Jones and Police Chief M. A. Hornsby, who is an honorary member.

These men will "mother" the M. family for another year, if necessary. However, indications are that Mrs. M. will be recovered in health long before 1940 comes rolling around. All hope so, for her sake and for the sake of her sons.

Opportunity Family No. 4, the M's, have been adopted. The Constitution publicly thanks the members of the "26 Club." Money to provide one-half a year's barest expenses for the M. family has been donated by an anonymous, kind woman whose initials are "M. L."

Will Atlanta Answer? The pitiful, tragic stories of Opportunity Families No. 2 and 3 have been told and Atlanta knows the heartrending problems that face these almost destitute mothers, fathers and children. What will Atlanta do about them?

Tomorrow, the story of Opportunity Family No. 5 will be related. Though its problem will be different, its need is as great, and it is just as deserving. The telling will mark the halfway point of the Ten Opportunities—but it is only a few short days until Christmas. Will all these families know a happy Christmas, Atlanta, because you have provided for them? We trust they will. Atlanta has never failed in the past.

Donations are coming in, yes. But there are not many of them. We want more, because these worth-while families need more. Give what you can and send it to H. H. Trotter, vice president and business manager of The Constitution. If you can't send much, send a dime or a dollar. It all helps. And it helps the family you designate! Every cent you give during this Christmas season will be carefully spent only for the benefit of the family you want to aid.

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"And if his name be George, I'll call him Peter; For new-made honor doth forget men's names."

It has been known to forget their parties, too. If John Garner decides he had rather go fishing; if Cordell Hull believes himself too old; if Henry Wallace can't pass the right wing inspection and if Bennett Clark can't escape the deadly Roosevelt veto—then our candidate for the next Democratic presidential nomination is Alfred M. Landon. The Republicans couldn't elect him but the Democrats can. They can do it because he is a New Dealer in the best sense of the term. They can do it because the nation is considerably more fond of him today than it was when it rejected him in 1936. They can do it because his democracy and his very real Americanism have given him a place above parties in the estimate of the American people.

This is not a serious proposal, of course, but it is a way of saluting the gallant Kansan who has turned out to be all the things Republican ballyhoo called him in 1936. The homespun is real, and so are the simplicity, democracy, generosity, patriotism, friendliness, and common sense.

"You are absolutely correct in your estimate of the German element in the south," writes Mrs. Peter B. (Julia Shealy) Hendrix, of Columbia, S. C. "My father's people came seven generations ago from Heidelberg, Germany, to the 'Dutch Fork' section of Newberry county, South Carolina. So did many of our neighbors' ancestors—among them the Dreher and Shulers. And how proud I am of the heritage of love, of home and family, of integrity and character, and a belief in a Divine Being, not related even remotely to the things for which the present rulers of persecuted Germany stand!"

They are beginning to experiment with sending newspapers out by radio, but what arrives is nevertheless a newspaper, not a radio broadcast. In other words it is something which can be examined at leisure and laid aside for further examination, not a thing which comes once and is gone; something whose advertising material is never an interruption of discord and therefore never an irritation. The miracle of radio is a miracle still, with great wonders yet to be. But in spite of all the pen remains mightier than the mike, the corn more precious than the eustachian tube.

"Dress a child instead of a doll" is a slogan for this Christmas season by the child welfare department of a federation of women's clubs. It is an appealing suggestion. We take it to include the whole principle of making Christmas a time for helping and making happy those who are in need rather than solely an occasion for exchanging gifts.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

A REFLECTION.

Mrs. Jere Wells was about ready to leave the hospital the other day, and I was congratulating her for her recovery from a serious operation. She expressed gratitude for the skill and kindness of her doctors and nurses, adding, "And I am very grateful for a discovery I have made as I have waited here to get well. You know quiet hours may prove more than 60 mere minutes." And then she told me about an experience which had come to her one day during her convalescence. I asked her to write it out for me. I pass it on to you:

"One day as I lay on my sick-bed, impatient and ailing and fretful, and my hospital room's clean plainness was dark with the gloom of my spirit, There came a bright gleam through my window—a sudden, swift spear-line of sunlight That entered my chamber of suffering, illumined it quickly, and vanished.

It vanished, but still remained with me, its miracle wrought in my spirit— No more would I brood over illness, no more would those four walls confine me— That swift-moving sunshine, reflected, I know, from some passing car window Had yet fired my heart with new courage—had worked a divine transformation.

Lord, let my life be such a mirror, reflecting the love of my Saviour; Let me, as I pass on my journey, send beams of His grace to dark places. Let me, by that miracle of reflection, fill sad hearts with His cheer and glory; And I shall be glad as I travel, for my passing will then not be vain."

'OLD-TIME' SCOUTS WILL BE HONORED

First Presbyterian Troops To Fete 'Alumni.'

An informal reception for all "alumni" of the Boy Scout troops of the First Presbyterian church will be held in the Borean church room of the church building at 7:30 o'clock on the night of December 27, it was announced yesterday.

J. C. Underwood, Scoutmaster of Troop No. 60, is in charge of arrangements and said all "old-timers" were particularly urged to attend and bring their friends. It is expected that several charter members of the Troop No. 60 and Troop No. 8 will be on hand as well as a number of former Scoutmasters of both groups.

The above prose poem will prove a blessing, I believe, to many hearts—some, who like the author, may be waiting beside still waters, others in the stress and strain of the hurrying days. It serves to remind us each and all that God speaks to us, if only we can be still and listen. "God moves in mysterious ways, His wonders to perform; He plants His footsteps on the sea, and rides upon the storm." "Be still, and know that I am God." Selah.

MOTHER, 73, GETS LIFE FOR SLAYING

Woman Shielded Son From Murder Charges for 10 Years.

SEATTLE, Dec. 13.—(AP)—Mary Eleanor Smith, 73-year-old mother whose silence for ten years shielded her son from murder charges, interrupted her trial with a guilty plea today and was given life imprisonment for the 1928 slaying of James Eugene Bassett.

Decato Earl Mayer, 44, the son and codefendant, strangled himself to death Sunday in the county jail. He left a note to "dearest mother" that he was weary of life, but Prosecutor B. Gray Warner said he did it to "cheat the gallows."

Mrs. Marion Bassett, 66, of Annapolis, Md., and Society Hill, S. C., answered "no" today when asked if she wanted the death penalty inflicted on Mrs. Smith. The murdered Annapolis youth, whose dismembered body never was found, was the son of Mrs. Bassett.

Mayer killed Bassett, the state contended, because he wanted Bassett's automobile. The jury voted life imprisonment after 19 minutes.

JUNIOR LEAGUERS COME TO THE AID OF BIG BROTHERS

Aims of Campaign Are Indorsed by Organization Volunteers Work To Answer All Appeals.

The Atlanta Junior League brought the Big Brother campaign closer to its goal yesterday with a contribution of $35 and a strong indorsement of the drive's aims and methods to bring Christmas into the homes of the very poor.

In a letter to Big Brother headquarters, Mrs. Katherine H. Cooper, League president, said:

"The Atlanta Junior League wishes to do its bit in helping to carry forward the most excellent work which your paper does under the title of the Big Brothers' fund. This work reaches people who otherwise might feel that their contribution would be too small to accomplish any real benefit.

Efficiently Distributed.

"Our gift falls in the same category in that it is small, but combined with many others and efficiently distributed, as you do it, it will help to swell the total.

"As you doubtless know, Junior League funds are distributed widely to aid in many worthwhile charitable activities, but we could not allow such a worthy activity as you are carrying on to go unrecognized by our organization.

"Consequently, the enclosed represents many times more good wishes and appreciation than the actual dollars involved, which, incidentally, are in addition to our welfare budget.

"In addition to our good wishes for the Big Brothers' campaign we also wish to acknowledge our real gratitude for the continued operation which The Constitution

GOLD SHIELD LAUNDRIES

Meet Big Brother Number One -- Warm Hearted, Tireless Pat Gillen

'It Brings Cheer—I'm Glad To Do Anything I Can,' He Declares.

Know the man with the warmest heart in Atlanta. Know the man who has given much of his time and efforts to make this year's campaign to bring warmth and cheer to the coldest, dreariest hearts of the city a success.

Know Big Brother No. 1, Pat Gillen, aide to Governor Rivers, and a leading spirit in the sixth annual Big Brother campaign to provide Christmas food and toys where they are most needed.

A former director of Georgia's veteran service, Gillen has played big brother to the state's Confederate soldiers and their widows. Now he works for the happiness of the friendless and the poverty-stricken, for those for whom Christmas would be just another day if it was not for the Big Brothers.

"I cannot recommend this work too highly," Gillen said yesterday. "It reaches into homes where poverty is unbearable. It brings cheer and aid to persons whose need is acute. I am glad to do anything I can to further the purpose of the Big Brothers."

Chosen Little Brother, and mass has always given us, and it is our desire to evidence a similar spirit of co-operation."

Work of Volunteers.

The Junior League's contribution and Mrs. Cooper's letter were gratefully received at Big Brother headquarters, 56 Peachtree street, where a small army of volunteers labor daily in a determined effort to bring Christmas cheer to the drabdest, poorest homes in Atlanta.

Hundreds of appeals, written and verbal, have been received, checked, and tabulated at headquarters. All beg for help in making Christmas happier for some distressed family.

Hundreds of names have been placed on the list of those who, volunteering two hours of their time, will sell Constitution's Big Brother edition on the streets of Atlanta the Sunday before Christmas.

All Goes To Work.

Successful men in all walks of the city's life have agreed to lend services to help those who can do nothing for themselves or their dependents. Every cent realized from the sale of the papers will go into the fund to purchase baskets of food and gifts for those who on Christmas Day would otherwise receive nothing.

"In spite of the large number of public-spirited and warm-hearted men who have volunteered, more are needed," M. M. (Mike) Gillen, chairman of the paper sales committee, said yesterday. "The need is greater than ever this year," he stated, "and it will be all we can do to take care of the many who have asked for, and really need our help."

He asked that all interested in furthering the work clip the attached coupon and mail or bring it to Big Brother headquarters at 56 Peachtree street.

In the meanwhile, organization work for the sale of Big Brother editions of The Constitution goes forward in all sections of the city and its suburbs.

The Big Brothers of College Park will meet tonight in the city hall there to complete their plans.

A. B. Brooks, in charge of the meeting, has invited all male residents of College Park to attend. Ned Eggleston will assist the West End post of the American Legion in the sale of papers there next Sunday, and has requested all who have enlisted to report to the West End American Legion clubhouse at 7 o'clock that morning.

Act, as amended, I hereby approve an increase of $1,000,000,000 in the amount of outstanding principal of mortgages which may be insured by the Federal Housing Administration, making an aggregate of $3,000,000,000.

In his letter to the President, McDonald said:

"It seems apparent now that, largely because of the effectiveness of the amended act, 1936 will be the most prosperous home building year since 1929."

"Nevertheless," the administrator added, "decent housing facilities in the United States are still grossly inadequate. An ongoing task lies ahead in promoting sufficient construction to meet the country's needs."

Touching on a variety of subjects, Mr. Roosevelt said he and Anthony Eden, former British foreign minister, agreed that they had a very pleasant conversation. The President declined to tell the subject of their talk.

Answering another question, the chief executive said his legislative program was coming along all right. He was asked whether he was getting both advice and opposition, and replied he was receiving a lot of advice and no opposition.

Still another question brought from the President an expression of belief that Secretary Wallace's remarks about the results of cotton and tobacco referenda last week were about right. Wallace said that the referenda results signified the permanence of the New Deal's farm program.

payable January 2, to shareholders of record December 20, and $135,000 regular payment on April 1, 1939, to shareholders of record March 20. Dividends declared were on the same basis as last year, and the total of December and January payments to employees and shareholders will amount to $293,000. Total dividends and extra compensation paid during 1938 amount to $806,000, this going to the institution's 2,400 shareholders, officers and employees.

"James D. Robinson, president of the institution, stated that earnings for the year are estimated at $921,000, an increase over the previous year. Deposits now total $105,000,000, showing an increase of $18,000,000 over the same date a year previous."

"This favorable record," said Mr. Robinson, "is due principally to the fine teamwork and co-operation of our entire personnel. It is therefore, only proper that all those who worked so enthusiastically in the interest of the institution should share in the increased earnings. It is very pleasing to the management to reward the loyal and efficient members of our staff by doubling this extra compensation."

"He pointed out that the institution has lent over $100,000,000 to merchants, manufacturers and individuals during the year.

"John K. Otter, chairman of the board, characterized the institution's operations for the year as

FLEEING JEWS HELD TO PERSONAL NEEDS

Can Take Nazi Goods Paid for in Advance in Foreign Exchange.

BERLIN, Dec. 13.—(AP)—The economic ministry decreed today that German or stateless Jews leaving Germany after January 1 may take with them only property sufficient for their direct personal needs.

Authoritative sources, however, were quick to point out that Jews would be able to obtain special permits to take such goods as might benefit German exports under the reported Schacht plan of coupling exports with Jewish emigration—a plan still in its formative stages.

In this connection, it was pointed out that German machinery had been especially considered as goods which Jews might take with them under the plan attributed to Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank.

The goods would be paid for in advance in foreign exchange loans from beneficiaries abroad. Today's issue of the Jewish information sheet suggested that the loans might be granted without interest and redeemed later by emigrants "from the yields of their labor."

The foreign loans, according to the incomplete "Schacht plan," would be granted to groups of four or five Jews with one wealthy Jew to each group.

The loan, in the first place, would have been for an amount equal to the Jewish's net after he had met the capital flight tax, the 20 per cent Vom Rath punitive fine and the approximately 15 per cent levy for the relief of poor Jews.

A Jew with a gross fortune of 100,000 marks—nominally $40,000—after paying all obligations to the state would have a net fortune of 40,000 marks—$16,000. To take his capital out of Germany he would have to convert it into equivalent in foreign exchange of about 3,200 marks—$1,280.

HITLER MAY RECALL ENVOY, PAPER SAYS

London Press Views German Slight as Blow to Appeasement Policy.

(Copyright, 1938, by United Press.) LONDON (Wednesday) Dec. 14. The refusal of German Ambassador Herbert von Dirksen to attend last night's dinner at which Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain spoke on foreign affairs was played sensationally by the London press this morning and diplomatic correspondents characterized the boycott as an international incident which made worse Anglo-German relations.

One paper, the tabloid, Daily Mirror, went so far as to say it was almost certain Chancellor Hitler would recall his ambassador, that Chamberlain would abandon his policy of appeasing the dictators and would cancel his scheduled visit to Rome.

The Daily Express said it was reported from Berlin that Hitler personally ordered his representatives in London to boycott the dinner.

British political writers of all shades of party affiliation deplored the Nazi boycott of Chamberlain's speech. Some regarded it as merely a "faux pas in manners" others attributed it to a much deeper cause. All realize that it marks a further deterioration of Anglo-German relations.

The Daily Express said that Hitler, in the context of the speech, was angered and surprised and made up his mind immediately to order his representatives to boycott the dinner. The paper said Hitler objected to the passage "History teaches us that no form of government ever remains the same" and was annoyed also at the statement by Chamberlain that "we shouldn't cut ourselves off from contact with such countries."

The paper said that Hitler considered the matter of the utmost importance and therefore dealing with it personally instead of leaving the decision to his foreign office and propaganda ministry as normally would be done.

"Satisfactory" and expressed confidence in the continued economic development of the southeast.

"The First National," he said, "was established in 1865 by a group of Atlantans headed by General Alfred Austell. It was realized that if the so-called recovery from Civil War devastation it must have banking service. Several months were required to raise the $100,000 capital.

"Atlanta has grown from ashes to a great metropolis, and the southeast in recent years has made more rapid strides industrially than most any other section of the country. It takes much less faith today than it did in 1865 for us to visualize vastly more substantial progress for our section in the future. We easily may see today that, properly approached, the south is 'Economic Opportunity Number One.'"

Anzeiger last Friday described Baldwin, now Earl Baldwin of Bewdley, as a "guttersnipe."

The prime minister asserted that Britain is arming so heavily that she will be influenced by "reason and not by force" in seeking to ease Europe's grievances and injustices.

Two other speeches in London tonight by members of the British cabinet gave deeper significance to Chamberlain's words.

1.—Malcolm MacDonald, dominions and colonial minister, warned that the British empire may crumble and break up within the present generation unless spreading nationalism "which has bitten some of the dominions rather badly" is curbed.

2.—Sir Thomas Inskip, minister for co-ordination of defense, warned that Britain's huge rearmament will back up British foreign policies and that, in event of future crises, it will not be necessary to "refrain from appropriate action" because of defense weaknesses.

Newspaperman Presses Right To Interview Star, Nicks His Opponent.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Dec. 13.—(UP)—The right of a newspaperman to interview Annabella, the one-name French movie star, was vindicated today and Guillermo Madero, member of a prominent Buenos Aires family, who disputed the right, had a four-centimeter slash on his right arm to show how wrong he was.

It all started when Madero decided that no reporters should be allowed to interview the French screen star, the newspaperman cut him self a piece of Madero's forearm and they called it a day.

Peralta received the congratulations of the witnesses but Madero refused to be reconciled and went away still mad. Annabella, meanwhile had left for Rio de Janeiro.

DAUGHTER, EX-WIFE BLAME 'THE GIMP'

Take Stand Against Snyder; Alderman Shows Scars to Courtroom.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 13.—(UP)—Martin (The Gimp) Snyder, ex-husband of blues-singer Ruth Etting, was accused today by his former wife and his daughter of a cold-blooded attack on young Myrl Alderman, Miss Etting's piano-playing boy friend, whom he shot in the abdomen last October.

Immediately after the testimony of Miss Etting and 21-year-old Edith Snyder, the state called on Alderman, 30-year-old composer, to corroborate their stories.

Not as 'Man and Wife.'

Alderman, after detailing events of the night of October 15 when he said Snyder "kidnaped" him at a broadcasting studio, forced him to go to the "love cottage" where Miss Etting and Miss Snyder were preparing dinner for him and then shot him in a jealous rage, was asked whether it was true that he and Miss Etting had been "living together as man and wife."

"No," he replied firmly.

He admitted that he was "in love with Miss Etting, but said that on all their junkets they stayed in separate rooms and never lived "as man and wife" at any time.

Snyder had indicated in his statements to police that the young musician had won the affections of his wife, who divorced him in Chicago last year. Miss Etting, in her testimony today, accused Snyder of beating her with a cane, cursing her, and said he shot her young friend deliberately.

Unprovoked Attack.

Miss Snyder followed Miss Etting to the stand, and while Snyder faced her a few feet away, accused him of an "unprovoked attack" on the musician.

At the bidding of Prosecutor Blalock, Alderman unbuttoned his shirt to display two scars on the abdomen, showing where the bullet had entered and emerged. He said he lost consciousness and knew no more until police arrived.

Alderman, when admitting he was in love with Miss Etting, said they took many trips together. He said upon leaving the hospital he went to his Riverside county farm, where he raises frogs, and that his fiancée accompanied him.

NAZI PRESS RENEWS ATTACK ON BRITONS

Warns That 'Agitators' Against Reich Will 'Be Struck Back At.'

BERLIN, Wednesday, Dec. 14.—(UP)—The Nazi press today commenting on Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech on foreign affairs last night, resumed its attack on Lord Baldwin, former British prime minister.

"Whoever joins the ranks of agitators against the Third Reich must reckon with being struck back at," the Berliner Lokalanzeiger said editorially. "This applies to former Premier Baldwin as much as to Eden and all the others."

"If Baldwin had kept his atrocious speech about the alleged mistreatment of German Jews to himself, then the Lokalanzeiger among others would not have been forced to examine his speech for its true political meaning."

No Berlin paper referred to the German boycott of Chamberlain's speech although the official Nazi press agency, D. N. B., in a brief message from London, said the Germans did not attend. The message made no explanation.

German government quarters were most reserved and refused to comment on Chamberlain's speech or the absence of the Germans. The reference to the German press was resented, however, in private Nazi quarters where it was maintained that Germany has an even better reason to feel offended at "patronizing" criticism in the British press and in British public meetings, especially in connection with the Jewish question.

The Nazis claimed the same right of criticism for the German press. The Lkal Anzeiger dismissed Chamberlain's reference to the relationship between the nation and the individual and with forms of government by saying, "It is hardly worth while to debate this. But Chamberlain and England may rely without further thought on a thousand-year duration of the Nazi Third Reich."

Abraham Lincoln in 1864 issued the first presidential proclamation fixing Thanksgiving as a national holiday on the fourth or last Thursday in November.

BLASTS WRECK REBEL LINES.

HENDAYE, France (at the Spanish Frontier), Dec. 13.—(AP)—Spanish government dispatches said today that military action was increasing on the Madrid front with a series of mine explosions spreading destruction in insurgent lines.

The explosions were reported followed by a heavy exchange of fire between enemy trenches, dispatches said, but a large-scale attack failed to develop.

Warrants Out for President Coster, Treasurer Dietrich, English Agent.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP)—The government ordered today the arrest of F. Donald Coster, president of McKesson & Robbins, Inc., and two other men, as four separate investigations went deeper into the mystery of the drug corporation's apparent loss of $18,000,000 in listed assets.

Warrants issued by United States Commissioner Garrett W. Otter charged Coster, George S. Dietrich, assistant treasurer, and George Vernard, Montreal representative of W. W. Smith & Co., English agents, with violation of the securities act of 1934. Hector J. Dowd, an SEC investigator, signed the complaint.

Samuel Rich, counsel for Coster and Dietrich, said they would surrender in Bridgeport, Conn., tomorrow.

Meanwhile, the board of McKesson & Robbins, which called for the resignation of the two men yesterday, ordered a special meeting for next Monday at which removal action will be taken. Coster and Dietrich had been given until noon today to resign.

GIANT BATTLESHIP OF 45,000 TONS PLANNED BY NAVY

Budgetary Approval Given 22-Ship Program as Plans Are Made to Train 28,000 for Construction.

By ALBERT L. WARNER.
Special to The Constitution.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 13. At least one and perhaps both of the two new battleships which will head the regular new construction program to be presented to the next congress will be designed to be the biggest ships launched in American naval history, 45,000 tons, according to Navy Department plans today.

There were these other developments in the coast defense program: Recommendation of three new fleet air bases for the Atlantic. Budgetary approval of a 22-warship construction program for the next congress.

Official planning for both army and navy aviation bases in Alaska, along with continued improvement of Hawaii and Pacific islands for use in case of emergency.

Completion of a big army airplane construction program, the details of which are on the President's desk now. It is understood that the President is looking with favor on figures as high or higher than those initially proposed by the War Department.

Tentative decision on no expansion of the warship construction authorization, enlarged by congress for the navy at the last session. The navy wishes to avoid extremes.

Training to provide 28,000 more skilled workers for naval construction.

The White House, which has been vested by congress with discretion to authorize construction of larger battleships, has shown readiness to give approval to the 45,000-ton vessel. A continued flow of significant indications has convinced administration officials that Japan already is starting to build in excess of the traditional 35,000-ton size. The latest was a report that an official German naval gazette had described a 43,000-ton Japanese vessel under construction.

Five Kiwanians' Birthdays Are Celebrated at Party

YOUTH GETS DEATH FOR HERD SLAYING

Richard Smith Sentenced in Murder of Rhodes Center Watchman.

Richard Smith, 18-year-old negro, was convicted of the murder of Thomas Herd in Fulton county superior court yesterday and was sentenced to follow his former crony, Raymond Carter, star state witness, to the electric chair.

Judge Paul S. Etheridge passed sentence late yesterday shortly after a verdict of guilty was returned. Attorneys announced they will appeal.

Smith was charged with the slaying of an aged night watchman at Rhodes Center. The accusation was made by Carter, himself under death sentence for the slaying of the late Charles Thornton, chief of the Jackson, Ga., police department.

While the death sentence hung over him, Carter came into court Monday a week ago and testified he was a witness to Herd's killing and that Smith did it with a milk bottle filled with sand. Carter was electrocuted Friday.

Fulton courts continued the Smith trial through late yesterday, and the testimony of Carter was said by the prosecution to be the "clinching evidence of the case."

RHOADS CLASS TO EAT CRACKLINS, 'CHITLINS'

Cracklin' bread, "chitlins," pot liquor and similar edibles will be on the menu when the Rhoads class of Park Street Methodist church holds an old-fashioned dinner at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow night at the church.

The entertainment will be a Christmas party, with Harold Yancy, chairman of the entertainment committee, Miss Mary Connally and Mrs. R. R. Beavers will supervise the dinner. Officers of the class are E. W. Newman, president; C. C. Carter, vice president; W. H. Cartwright, secretary; and W. J. Eldridge, treasurer.

Kolisch Quartet Gives Performance Called the Best in Many Seasons

By MOZELLE HORTON YOUNG.
The Kolisch Quartet, in their Atlanta debut last night, made the most brilliant and lasting impression of perhaps any chamber music unit that Atlanta has heard in many seasons. Their concert was a presentation of the Atlanta Music Club, given in the auditorium of the Woman's Club.

Their playing gave freely of everything that one could desire in ensemble playing. Their temperaments were perfectly matched musically, the tones of their instruments were blended to a beauty seldom heard, their playing was entirely from memory (an almost unheard-of feat for quartets), which gave them a spontaneity and freedom in their interpretations that made their performances exceptionally artistic.

Kolisch, the founder and first violinist of the quartet, is the only artist-violinist I have ever seen who plays left-handed. But for the unusual appearance one could not detect it, so skilled is his technique and so superb his art.

The program opened with the Beethoven Quartet in F major, Opus 18, No. 1, given an interpretation par excellence. Before they had finished the first movement they had completely won their auditors.

My choice of the whole program was the Debussy Quartet in G minor, Opus 10, though there may be some who differ because I am by nature a Debussy enthusiast. But the Kolisch Quartet played this exquisite work just as it should be played, painting with rich tone colors, enchanting with shadows and lights in music, and giving perfect pleasure to the listeners.

The final number was Schubert's Quartet in D minor (posthumous), called "Death and the Maiden." It is a masterful work and was given an unforgettable performance.

Acknowledging the ovation, they returned to play as an encore the beautiful slow movement of Beethoven's last Quartet, Opus 135.

Atlantan Is First Ex-Soldier to Get Pay in Reserve

James M. Johnston, of Atlanta, will be the first former soldier of the regular army to receive a pay check as a member of the new regular army reserve in the fourth corps area, Colonel D. D. Tompkins, recruiting officer of the Atlanta district office, said yesterday.

Johnston, who enlisted in the new branch of the reserve last August after having served for more than a year in the regular army, will receive an $8 check from Colonel Tompkins in his office in the New Post Office building, December 22.

Set up by congress at the last session, the regular army reserve was established to enlist former soldiers, under the age of 36, honorably discharged after at least a year of continuous service with the army. A restriction against married men recently has been lifted.

Enlisting for a four-year period, reservists are made an enlistment allowance of $2 a month, in addition to a sum not to exceed $150 when ordered to active duty. Members are liable for duty only when ordered during an emergency declared by the President.

Rubeling Will Undergo Physical Examination by Club Doctor

All in the GAME
by Jack Troy

Roy Mundorff was all set to create a new Hollywood fashion and then Coach W. A. Alexander stepped in and ruined everything yesterday.

The new fashion has nothing to do with the technicolor film Mundorff will make of Georgia Tech's western expedition. Mundorff was in a position to create a swell fad. He had everything arranged.

Tech's basketball coach appeared in the lecture room yesterday with a big raccoon on a leash.

"What the — I mean, what have you there, Mundorff?" Coach Alex asked.

"It's a coon," Mundorff glibly responded.

"Well, get rid of it," Alex said.

Mundorff looked a bit downcast. "I had sort of planned..."

"Well, forget it," Alex continued. "You'll have enough to do without playing nursemaid to a coon. Give it to Burton."

"Your request puts me in a very embarrassing position," Mundorff said, "since I am not technically the owner of this coon. You see, Murdock Equen..."

"What's he got to do with this?" Coach Alex wanted to know.

"It's really Equen's coon, all right," Mundorff hastened to say, "and naturally I hesitate to make a hasty transfer of ownership. But if you'll take the responsibility..."

"I'll do anything if you will just get that coon out of here," Alex added.

And so the last seen of the coon was as Fred Bartlett, no relation to Joe, led it out in the direction of the training rooms where Burton, the veteran negro rubber, was engaging in massaging players.

Whether this means the coon gets a new lease on life, I cannot say. But I do know that a chance to establish a splendid new Hollywood fad slipped away. And what a tough break it was for the coon! I dare say that it would have been the first real coon ever to ride west with a football team.

Oh, well, maybe Mundorff can pick up an armadillo going through Texas and hide it from Coach Alex until he has had a chance to see it.

The only thing is he gave away the leash, too. But they're a dime a dozen in Texas, out where the west begins.

OH, PROFESSOR, WHAT A QUIZ!

Frank and John Patrick dropped in for a visit at Tech yesterday and during the course of the conversation Frank, who played pro ball for the Chicago Cardinals this past season, revealed that the squad was given a quiz during training season.

"We were given 200 plays to learn," Frank pointed out. "Before the season opened we stood an examination on all these plays. It cost just 25 cents for each wrong answer."

Which may have given Coach Alex an idea. He sort of grinned when he heard it.

There is a lot of time to kill on the four-day ride to California and Coach Alex may be figuring on picking up a little spending money.

It may or may not be a comfort to the Tech boys, but one of Patrick's Cardinal teammates spent just $50 to find out how little he knew about plays.

Personally, after listening to the "Greek Chef's" opinion of sports writers at Monday's Rotary luncheon for the Tech players, I think I will take along Lou Little's book on "How to Watch Football."

PATRICK FAVORS CARNEGIE.

Patrick was asked what he thought of the T. C. U.-Carnegie Tech game and he said he thought Carnegie would win.

"They're big, fast and versatile," he pointed out. He ought to know. Duquesne beat his alma mater, Pittsburgh, in convincing fashion during the season. And Patrick played against Tech, the old city rival, for three years.

Frank also knows plenty about the Texas Christian style of play. He played with an all-star group against the Christians.

GIANTS, PACKERS GET THREE EACH ON PRO ELEVEN

Bruiser Kinard, Whiz White and Isbell Make Coaches' 2d Team.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP)—

Three members of the New York Giants, National professional football league champions, and three members of the Green Bay Packers, the runners-up, today were named to the 1938 all-league team selected by the circuit's 10 coaches.

The Giants, who whipped the Packers by 23-17 in last Sunday's title match, are represented by Halfback Ed Danowski, the league's top passer; Center Mel Hein, named to the team for the sixth straight year, and Tackle Ed Widseth. Fullback Clarke Hinkle, the season's leading scorer; Don Hutson, star pass-catching end; Russ Lelow, guard, won places for Green Bay.

In addition to Hinkle, honored with a first-team berth for the third year in a row, and Hein, there were two other holdovers from the 1937 eleven: Tackle Joe Stydahar, of the Chicago Bears, and Gaynell Tinsley, Chicago Cardinal end. The other nominees were Danny Fortmann, of the Bears, guard; Ace Parker, of the Brooklyn Dodgers, quarterback; and Lloyd Cardwell, Detroit Lions halfback.

Widseth led in the voting with 46 points to 45 for Hinkle, 43 for Hein and 41 for Hutson. Danowski, in addition to his 25 points for halfback, placed second in the quarterback race with 16.

For the first time in three years no first-year men made the first team. There were three on the second team: Byron "Whizzer" White, the Pittsburgh Pirates' Rhodes scholar; Bruiser Kinard, Dodger tackle; and Cecil Isbell, star halfback of the Packers.

The first and second teams, with points in parentheses:

SECOND TEAM

Pro Papers Sought By Revenue Agents

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP)—

Federal Judge Alfred C. Cox today signed an order requiring the New York Football Giants to produce their financial records to revenue agents.

The Giants last Sunday won the National Professional League championship by defeating the Green Bay (Wis.) Packers.

The order, which directed Mara to show cause why Henry Baum, accountant for the corporation, should not also be required to appear before Revenue Agent Samuel Litwin, was requested by Assistant United States Attorney Jesse Moss, who presented an affidavit by Litwin saying that Mara had refused to produce the books, although a summons had been served.

Moss' petition asserted that on December 8 Benjamin Karten, a general deputy collector of internal revenue, bought tickets at the corporation's office for the game with the Packers and had to pay more than the printed price. Too, Moss claimed, the ticket was not stamped as required by law to indicate that the price paid was higher than listed.

Coach Out; DePaul Abandons Football

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—(AP)—

Ben Connor, De Paul University football coach, joined the list of employed mentors today after the school's abandonment of intercollegiate grid competition.

Connor had been head football coach at De Paul since March, 1937.

The Rev. Michael J. O'Connell, president of the Catholic institution, said intercollegiate football was discontinued because of the "lack of sufficient interest to justify the cost of the football program." He added a "greatly expanded" intramural program would replace the sport.

Druid Hills Cagers Beat Lithonia, 38-14

Led by the sharp-shooting of Christian Hamft, who connected for 18 points, the Druid Hills quintet swamped Lithonia, 38-14, yesterday afternoon on the winners' court.

McDonald paced the losers with eight markers.

THE LINEUPS. LITHONIA: Thibodeau (5); F. Kelley (4); Payne (10); C. McDonald (9); Wigand (5); G. Winfree (3); Sub: Bruiser Kinard (1); Wootley (1); Coach, Daniels; Lithonia, Davidson, Powell.

DRUID HILLS: Hamft (18); Brooks (10); Kelley (4); McDonald (9); Wigand (5); G. Winfree (3); Sub: Bruiser Kinard (1); Wootley (1); Coach, Daniels; Lithonia, Davidson, Powell.

Half-time: Druid Hills 30; Lithonia 14.

Sophs Head Parade On S'Eastern Grids

Alabama Only Team With None on First String; Maroons, Wildcats, Had Most.

By TOM McRAE.

Sophomores were responsible for the success, or lack of it, of most of the Southeastern conference eleven's past season.

The football experts cast their experienced eye on Tennessee, during early September drills, and solemnly concluded this wasn't the year for Alabama and L. S. U., and Major Neyland might as well have stayed in Panama; but they failed to reckon with four sophomores.

The greatest of them is Robert Lee Suffridge, probably as fine a player as any in the south. Bob won a guard post on the U. P. All-America. He made all the All-Southeastern eleven's. Almost the equal of Suffridge is the other Vol guard, Ed Molinski. The speedy Bob Foss was regular right halfback his first year and Marshall Shires was regular right tackle.

LARGEST LISTS.
Mississippi State and Kentucky had the most sophs. All eleven's had several with the exception of Alabama. Alabama's starting lineup was made entirely of juniors and seniors. University of Georgia and Georgia Tech had no exceptional sophs, unless it was Neal Cavette at Tech.

E. W. "Spike" Nelson won't be moaning over graduation. Nine regulars were sophomores at Mississippi State. Perhaps the best is Robert Bruce, halfback, who sparked the Maroons' victory over Duquesne and continually gained through the big L. S. U. line. All the linemen, except the center, were playing their first varsity ball—ends, Elrod and Harrison; tackles, Alford and Tripson; guards, McDowell and Corhorn. Tullis, fullback, and Fletcher, quarterback, saw service their initial year.

Kentucky should be a much improved team next year, as Ab Kirwan had eight sophomore first-stringers. Dav. Zoeller, left halfback, was sensational, making a 70-yard run against Alabama for a touchdown. Coach W. A. Alexander has much respect for Dave. Both tackles, Spears and Reid, and both guards, Wolloughby and Palmer, an end, Hardin, right halfback, Combs, and fullback, Ishmael, were playing their first year.

TULANE'S GROUP.
Tulane's starting lineup had Bodney at left end, Claude Groves at right guard, Fred Gloden at fullback, all sophomores. Red Dawson had such fine material he was able to use the two-team system. By this method these men were able to play nearly half of each game: Golomb, end; McCollum, tackle; guards, Clay and O'Boyle; center, Flower; left half, Hays; right half, Cassberry.

L. S. U. had J. W. Gore, who made the Writers' All-Southeastern as a sophomore. The Ole War Skule also used the two-team system, and its "B" team had first-year men, Simes, Erdman and Anastasio, in the backfield, and Whitman at tackle and Johnson at end.

Harry Mehre's fine Ole Miss eleven had Whittington at a half post; guards, G. Kinard, brother of "Bruiser" Kinard, Mississippi All-America tackle in '36 and '37, and Lyles and Dossett, tackles.

Josh Cody's best back the past season was Bud Wanda, a sophomore, who was handicapped by injuries. Tex Hanna, fullback, and Mush Battista, guard, performed splendidly their first year of varsity competition. Berry became regular center when Captain Jimmy Oxford was declared ineligible. Tommy Taylor, halfback, will be counted on heavily as a junior next fall.

FIRST CHANCES.
Injuries to the regular guards made Ernest Mills a starter in six Auburn games. Abb Chritzberg was third-string center at the beginning of the season but improved steadily and started the Plains States last two contests. Dick McGowan, though not a starter, was considered a regular. He understudied "Spec" Kelly. The 185-pound left half threw several touchdowns passes. His pass set up the Auburn touchdown against Tech. He ran 75 yards for a touchdown against Florida. He is an excellent kicker. In the safety position he goes back under punts and catches them over his shoulder, like a good outfielder. He may be the best sophomore back in the south.

The state schools, Tech and Georgia, had few sophomore regulars. Quiet, soft-spoken Neal Vette, whose punting aided by the Jackets so tremendously, was probably the most valuable. Joe Bartlett, a powerful runner but a mediocre passer and punter, and Bobby Beers, a fine little runner, passer and kicker, were reserve tailbacks. The Bulldogs' first-string tailback was Earl Hise, a soph, as was Alex McCaskill, end, who played enough to be considered a regular. The straw-thatched Alex is probably the Bulldogs' best all-around athlete.

Vanderbilt had only two sophs but both were splendid players. Holdgraf, at tackle, made the Writers' All-Southeastern and Higgins, probably the best first-year fullback in the conference.

Not a single soph could crash the Alabama first team, though Fred Davis at tackle saw much service. Second-stringers were Higerson, guard; Newman, end, and Averette, center.

Hec Clark, at Sewanee, had some fine sophomore prospects: tackles, Julian and Mahi; guards, Duncan, Andrews and Cotter; center, Workman, and backs, Gillespie, Macon and Fleming.

As this is the season for the All-So-and-So teams, a pretty good

RUBELING TRIES COMEBACK

Al Rubeling, who started at second base for the Crackers last spring, will be back in town today or Thursday to undergo a physical exam to determine his fitness to play for the Crackers next spring. Al was suffering from yellow jaundice last year, and if fully recovered may prove valuable to the Cracker team next year.

IF AL IS IN SHAPE INFELD WORRIES MAY BE SETTLED

Ex-Macon Player Out Last Season With Yellow Jaundice.

By JACK TROY.

A verdict highly important to the Cracker baseball club will be reached here within the next day or two.

Al Rubeling, who was ill all last year with yellow jaundice, will arrive in Atlanta from his home in Baltimore either today or Thursday for a complete physical examination.

If the doctor puts his okay on Rubeling's condition, one of the Cracker infield positions very likely will be settled. Manager Paul Richards counts Rubeling, in good health, as one of the best rookies he has seen.

SENSATION AT SAVANNAH.
Rubeling was a sensation in spring training camp at Savannah. He became ill shortly before the season opened and was out of baseball most all of the season. He started at second for Atlanta.

The former field captain of the Macon Peaches, who plays either second, short or third, could be valuable as a utility player if he didn't make the grade as a regular.

The report of the club doctor will be awaited with interest. Rubeling would add a lot of speed to the club. He is as fast as Jack Bolling, with whom he played at Macon. Then, too, he hit well over .300 his last year with the Peaches.

Rubeling, writing President Earl Mann, insists he is fully recovered and that he has been working hard at a construction job.

FINAL VERDICT.
The doctor's report will serve as the final verdict. If favorable, it may mean the Crackers will not seek other infield help.

At said, Rubeling was the sensation of the training camp and showed one and all that he has plenty of ability.

There is a chance Manager Richards will settle on an infield of Bolling, Rubeling, Peters and Mauldin. The latter broke into organized baseball as a third baseman.

CORRECTING GOLF FAULTS.

LOS ANGELES—What are the most destructive faults in golf? How can they be corrected or at least cut down?

In wandering cross-country through this bunkered land from the Atlantic to the Pacific, your correspondent put this query to at least a dozen hard-working pros. You only hear of golf's star competitors—Snead, Revolta, Runyan, Picard and others. You hear almost nothing of the many, many hundreds who give all their time to teaching in a serious way, and who study the ancient game by day and night.

Golf instruction is one of the hardest of all the professions. It is especially rasping on the nerves after watching unkept and floundering swings hour after hour, day after day.

This seems to be the fault consensus of those I talked to—

1. Too much tension and stiffness.

2. The tendency to hit too soon from the top.

3. Lack of ability to concentrate on the few simple fundamentals needed.

About Concentration.
"They try to do enough thinking," one able instructor told me, "but they won't think of the right things at the right time. You can tell them all day to take a comfortable stance, to loosen up their feet and legs, to get easy—but they forget about it."

"All they think about is hitting that ball. That causes them to freeze. It causes the hurried backswing—the hurried downswing. Those planted feet and stiffened legs won't let them turn naturally. They stay too long with too much weight on the left foot. They are thinking where the ball might land—not of the right swing to put the ball where they want it."

"The hardest job is to get them from hitting too soon on the downswing. They want to start hitting even before the backswing is finished."

"What is the best cure for these faults?" I asked.
"The cure," the pro said, "is from the mental side. You must first give them the picture of what should be done. They must have a mental pattern to follow. I try to get them to think of a few simple fundamentals—such as an easy, comfortable stance—a smooth, unhurried backswing—just a half second's delay at the top—and then a smooth downswing. To wait on the hit as long as they can—not to rush it."

Head Action.
"What about head action?" I asked.
"We all know, or should know, the head must be held in place. It must anchor the swing. But it is one of the hardest things in golf to teach. At some cases the attempt to keep the head still locks the neck and the entire body. So I try to get them not to keep their eye on the ball, but their mind on the ball. I try to teach them not to think of anything beyond the ball. As I think you once wrote, 'You never look up and see a good shot.'"

"I try to make them keep from looking up for at least two seconds after the ball is hit. One good idea after the moment of impact is to look backwards, away from the ball."

At Little Rock I was talking with Hackbarth, the club pro. "Here we have Bill Dickey and

ROOSEVELT URGES FARM FEDERATION TO STUDY NEEDS

Calls for Survey To Determine Whether Additional U. S. Legislation Would Benefit Program

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 13.—(AP) President Roosevelt today invited the American Farm Bureau Federation in twentieth annual convention to make "a diligent study" to determine whether additional farm legislation was needed.

The President, in a letter read by Edward A. O'Neal, president of the federation, said he was convinced that the 1939 agricultural adjustment act "is sound in principle," a view which was shared in by O'Neal in his annual address and other speakers with reservation that the act was not perfect and should be stripped of "useless regulations" and given more liberal interpretation.

"I am convinced," read President Roosevelt's letter, "that the 1939 farm program formulated under this act and now being offered to farmers is the best farm program that can be put into operation for the 1939 crop year."

O'Neal and others offered the AAA program for control of surplus for a solution to America's major farm problems as "the best all-around farm program we have ever had."

They looked upon the AAA as a step in the right direction toward raising the farmer's income and giving him a fair share of the national income and said the farmers in the main were behind it.

Through the AAA and the soil conservation act, O'Neal said in his annual report, farmers were able to keep their production in line with demand, prices were stabilized through commodity loans, consumers were assured ample supplies at reasonable prices and the wasting of soil resources was being checked through payments to farmers for approved soil practices.

BANKHEAD OFFERS COTTON PLAN

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 13.—(UP) Senator John H. Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama, tonight proposed that the federal government give back to farmers the cotton upon which they had obtained loans above the market price.

Bankhead favored the government giving each farmer the equivalent of one-third of his normal yield if the producer would decrease his acreage proportionately.

The Alabama senator believed such a program would reduce the huge cotton surplus "four or five" million bales within a year.

SERVICE MEDAL AWARDED TO TWO

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 13.—(AP) The distinguished service medal of the American Farm Bureau Federation was presented here tonight at the bureau's 20th annual convention to Dr. William I. Myers, head of the department of agricultural economics and farm management at Cornell University, and to Mrs. Abbie C. Sargent, Bedford, N. H.

Dr. Myers was honored in recognition of his work as governor of the Farm Credit Administration in directing the financing of American agriculture after 1932.

Mrs. Sargent was honored as a farm wife and a grandmother who found time during her busy farm and home duties to take a leading part in every farm movement in her state.

Prisoners Weep As 'Ma' Hayes Leaves Stockade

A familiar face at the city stockade for 17 years was absent yesterday.

It was that of Mrs. J. L. Hayes, more commonly known as "Mother" Hayes, who has served as matron at the prison since March 1, 1921. She was given temporary leave because of a slight attack of rheumatism.

The prisoners wept when Mother Hayes left. She did, too, for it was the first time she had been away from her work in 27 years. But she hopes to return after a vacation of several months. Mrs. Hayes became the first matron of the Fulton county jail in 1911. She served there for eight years, later becoming matron at the state farm at Milledgeville, where she served for a year. Since then she has been at the city stockade and has conducted a Sunday school class every Sunday for the prisoners.

WEST FULTON HIGH PLANS BIG DINNER

Picnic Will Mark Cornerstone Laying Ceremonies Saturday.

Food will replace letters in the 147 baskets at the ceremonies marking the cornerstone laying of the new West Fulton County High school at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The event will be a community affair, and the baskets will provide a community dinner on the ground, it was announced yesterday as plans were completed. William A. Sapp, of Dalton, grand master of Georgia Masons, will officiate, assisted by Center Hill Lodge No. 686, F. & A. M., of which Dr. C. W. Childs is worshipful master.

Miss Frances Scott, assistant principal of the Lena H. Cox elementary school, one of the principal feeder schools for the new high school, and Lamar Mills, secretary of the Grove Park Civic League, have been the principals in mapping the plans. Members of parent-teacher organizations of feeder schools, principals and teachers and members of the Fulton county school system executive and administrative staffs will participate in the occasion and the women are preparing the dinner, which will begin at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. The cornerstone laying will take place promptly at 2 o'clock, it was said.

Mrs. Homer L. Wilson is principal of the Cox school and will have a part on the program. The new school, costing approximately $140,000, provides classrooms for 600 students will be opened early in 1939 and will relieve congestion mainly at Fulton County High school on Washington street, it was said yesterday.

Santa and Deer Again To Gallop At the Mansion

Santa Claus and his reindeer again will gallop over the executive mansion this Christmas as a symbol of Georgia's participation in Yuletide festivities.

The portrayal of the historic ride of old Saint Nick, illuminated in electric lights, which made its first appearance over the Governor's mansion on the Prado last year, is a memorial to D. F. McClatchey Sr., over whose home in Ansley Park the display was a familiar sight for several years. The sign will be erected Friday afternoon and will be illuminated by Governor Rivers following a brief radio address at 4:45 o'clock. The Governor will be introduced by Aubrey Milam. Persons visiting the illumination ceremonies have been requested to view proceedings from the street and not from the lawn of the executive mansion. The electrical display will remain lighted each night from 5 o'clock until 11 o'clock through December 31.

Trio of Cousins To Be Christened On Saturday by Dean de Ovies

By Sally Forth.

FOR the first time in the history of his ministry, Dean Raimundo de Ovies will christen three cousins at the same time when he officiates at an impressive service scheduled for Saturday afternoon. The youngsters are Roger Morse De Leon Jr., four-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger De Leon; Edith Charlotte Gober, three-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Gober, of New Orleans, La., and Daniel Gober Sullivan, six-week-old son of Dr. and Mrs. F. M. Sullivan.

Little Roger will be dressed in an exquisite robe of white batiste and lace, the handwork of his late paternal grandmother, which was worn by his father at his christening. The tiny garment features an old-fashioned petticoat of ruffles.

The christening gowns of little Gober Sullivan, which were ordered by their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Gober, cannot be described, as they have not yet arrived. Sally predicts, however, that they will be quite as adorable as their wearers. Sentiment lies in the fact that these two cousins are namesakes of their grandparents.

Scene of the christening will be the home of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Gober on Club drive. Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gober will be Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Gober, who came from their home in New Orleans in order that their little daughter might be christened with her cousins. They will remain for the Christmas holidays with their parents.

Samuel Tate Maddox and Mr. and Mrs. Gober have been chosen as godparents for the children. Mrs. Ben Kegny will be little Roger De Leon's godmother, Mrs. Samuel Tate Maddox will be godmother of Edith Charlotte Gober and Mrs. Hal Buck, aunt of Dan Gober Sullivan, will also be his godmother.

After the christening a reception will be given by the senior Gobers at their home for close friends of the babies' families. A Christmas tree will be placed in the living room under which will be placed toys for the youngsters, who will experience their first Christmas.

THE annual Christmas party given for boarding pupils and faculty of Washington Seminary is scheduled for this evening, with Miss Emma Scott and L. D. Scott as hosts.

Attired in their prettiest evening gowns, the honor guests will descend the broad stairway carrying lighted tapers and singing Christmas carols.

The students will form a cross in the Seminary's main hallway and when the electric lights are dimmed for a few minutes, the lighted candles will present an impressive scene as the last notes of the carols are heard. After dinner, which will be served in the beautifully decorated dining room, the honor guests and hosts will retire to the spacious drawing room, where Mr. Scott will read the Christmas story, "The Little Mixer," and Margaret Battle will sing several appropriate selections.

The party will close with the exchanging of gifts amid expressions of "Merry Christmas" as teachers and pupils leave early Thursday for their various homes and other places to spend the Christmas vacation.

Among the Seminary's popular boarding pupils is Anne Phillips, whose aunt, Mrs. W. B. Matthews, entertained the Seminary's entire boarding department last Sunday at an egg nog party at her home in Griffin.

AMONG familiar visitors scheduled to spend the Christmas holidays here are Mr. and Mrs. D. Walter Mabey, of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., and Camden, S. C., who will arrive Friday to visit their son and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Lewis Smith, at their home on Wesley road. Mr. and

RICH'S

Perfumes, Properly Selected, Make Lovely Gifts for All Ages

This year's Yuletide season offers tree decorations both unique and useful in line of cosmetics and perfumes. Some of the newest and most unusual are shown above.

Christmas Perfume Packages Have Caught the Jolly Yuletide Spirit

By Lillian Mae.

1. For the young lady who likes to carry perfume in her hand-bag, there's a new purse perfume container that won't leak and won't spill. The case is highly polished brass—gold color—and it's filled with your preference of four odors put up by a very grand firm. One of these, particularly appropriate as a gift, is called "Remember Me." Can you think of anything nicer? And the price is only $1.

2. Then, there are Christmas bells—cellophane with mistletoe spray tied with brilliant red ribbon, and a drum bottle of very fine perfume forms the clapper of the bell. You have your choice of odors in the single bell, for $1.75 or $2. Twin bells, carrying both odors, is $3.50 and a single bell carrying triple-clapper of three different odors, is $5. These are so very Christmasy!

3. Still in bells, comes a red or white sachet which will evoke evocative "ohs" and "ahs" as one sees them hanging on the tree. With clappers filled with a delightful fragrance for closet hangers or the lingerie drawer, they will scent their surroundings and remind the owner of the giver, long after the holidays have passed. They are only $1 each.

4. In a whimsical mood a French designer and perfumer has created some very merry little Christmas tree decorations. There's a jolly little Santa Claus, his round body a bottle of cologne, the fragrance of which is especially delightful for the young girl. Santa costs only $1.50. And he'll evoke shouts of joy from anyone to whom he's presented.

5. Then, by the same manufacturer, there's the angelic cherub shown above, with her red hair ribbon and flame-topped candle—which is a bottle of perfume, even the name of which spells excitement and unexpected things. The perfume itself would ordinarily cost more than the $2 price of cherub and scent.

Stocking Designer Gives Tips for Imperfect Legs

By Ida Jean Kain.

Hollywood is perhaps the most ingenious place in the world. There's nothing impossible, even to making thick legs appear slender and silky less rounded. It's done with stockings.

When a Hollywood creator of magic in stockings was in New York recently I buttonholed him for some of these tricks with hosiery. Of course, he did not admit anything short of perfection for the film gals, but he knew all the answers!

"What do you do for bow legs?" I asked tactlessly—just as if there were some bow legs in Hollywood! But after all, they are just flesh and blood and bone and among the hundreds of film beauties there must be one or two with knock knees, or anyway thick ankles.

"Bow legs? Wear the seam of the stocking toward the outside of the leg, or wear stockings with clocks. Wide clocks, tapering from a two-inch base up to a point, are also very slenderizing to heavy legs. Pointed heels make thick ankles look slimmer and square, low heels in the stockings make the ankles appear wider."

Also, this authority advises, a pronounced seam helps to slenderize the wide calf—and it makes the beautiful leg more beautiful. One of the cleverest of all the tricks for slenderizing is the use of ombre shaded hose. The shading is light to dark, with the calf in shadow, and blending from light at the front of the leg to darker at the seam in the back.

The mesh is important too. With thick legs it is best to wear a mesh with a perpendicular line, while a horizontal mesh is more flattering to legs that are thin.

If you are short, you should, first of all, avoid stockings with high heels, which cut the length of the leg. Try to co-ordinate the color of the hose as closely as possible with the color of the skirt, so that there will be no sharply dividing line to break you up into sections.

Bumpy looking heels can be camouflaged with a modernistic design to break up the line.

And while I had a chance to talk with this authority I got in a question that concerns all of us—how to make stockings last longer. Delaying washing, he told me, is the thing that causes stockings to wear out most quickly. They should be washed every time they are worn, because the silk is rotted by perspiration and soil. Also, the silk stretches with wearing, and washing closes the weave.

Soap should never be rubbed on the stockings. In fact, they should not be rubbed at all, just squeezed through the suds. For protection against the effects of perspiration and alkalies, the hose should contain either a tablespoon of epsom salts or a tablespoon of vinegar. Don't hang stockings up to dry. They should be laid flat, for if they are hung up the water drips through and wears down the silk. And, of course, stockings should never be dried in the sun or near a radiator.

Intimate Facts About Stars Picked Up by Columnist

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 13.—Jimmy Cagney has just shot Humphrey Bogart full of little holes and the blood is something terrible to see. "All we need is a good steak—and I could eat you," says the heartless Mr. Cagney to Villain Bogart as the latter wipes the tomato ketchup from his face and figure.

Bette Davis saves her throat (weakened by laryngitis) with six different whistles. One is tuned to call her sister, another her maid, another her mother, etc. . . . At a sunset drug store, William Gargan eats breakfast and reads the paper of the man on the next stool. Wallace Beery, wearing spectacles, squeezes out of a phone booth carrying a handful of letters. Also at the same place, Lucille Ball thumbs through a magazine and says to the young man carrying her parcels, "Was he drunk? I'll say he was drunk. Watch me."

And she demonstrates with a wobbly exhibition of trucking.

Mary Astor talks about little Marylyn, daughter of husband Dr. Thorpe: "She came home one day and wanted to know why she did not have a bodyguard like other children and where was her chauffeur. That was just a little bit too much for me, so I sent her to a public school, where she will grow up with children who don't know bodyguards, from a shinguard and a chauffeur from a chifonier. I don't want Marylyn to be a snob."

George Raft's influence obtained a job for Joe the brother of "Killer" Mack Grey. Incidentally, the "Killer" has gone up in the world. He no longer refers to himself as Mr. Raft's bodyguard. "I'm his private secretary," he says.

Answer—An excellent way to supplement the ordinary diet with vitamin B complex. Nearly every body would enjoy better health and vitality if such use of wheat germ were universal—or if every body returned to the use of plain wheat in place of refined wheat products.

Sinus Season.
About this season of the year my chronic sinus trouble begins to give trouble. I have been subject to sinus trouble for many years. Little or no trouble in summer and early autumn, but colder weather.

Answer—I believe cold has nothing to do with it, but coddling because of your obsession about cold is an important factor. Another important factor is the indoor Sahara. Send stamped envelope bearing your address for instructions for maintaining ideal humidity in the house, office, shop. Also ask for High Calcium Diet, Vitamins Everybody Needs. Inclose twenty-five cents coin if you want a copy of 70-page booklet "Call It C" which deals with sinusitis, bronchitis, laryngitis, chronic catarrh, tonsils, adenoids, ozema, common respiratory infections, fool proof cough medicine, etc.

My Day: Important Document In New Arrangement

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON.—It is interesting what a rearrangement of the same words will do to a well-known document. A short time ago, I was sent a small book in which the Constitution is rearranged so that you do not have to turn from one section to the other to know the final decision on some point, for all the sections dealing with one idea are grouped together. It seemed to me a most interesting and worth-while presentation of a document which is sacred to us all, but which many of us really do not understand.

Dr. Charles A. Beard says, "I think your idea is excellent," in writing to Allen Robert Murray, who is responsible for this piece of literary editing. The little pamphlet is entitled "What the Constitution Says," and carries a subtitle, "A Way To Understand the Constitution." I think many people will find it valuable.

I had a ride yesterday morning, the first one in many weeks, and even though the day was gray, it was delightful to be out on the bridge path.

It seemed to me that an extraordinary number of planes kept flying north, and I decided that instead of an hourly service, we were running a service every 15 minutes. This fact makes me realize that the work on a new airport in Washington is at least begun. Our very familiar blimp was sailing around also, and I began to think that this particular lighter-than-air means of transportation must have more hours in the air than any other similar ship.

In the afternoon and evening Mr. Charles Taussig and Mr. Aubrey Williams and I met with a group of young people to discuss, among other things, the question of awakening our interest as a nation in the study of democracy, its real meaning to us as individuals and its practical application in our own citizenship.

In the afternoon I also went to the Madeira School to see their Christmas play. They give the same religious play each year, accompanied by the singing of certain well-known Christmas carols by one of their glee clubs. It was done with reverence and earnestness by the freshman high school group.

Having told you how annoyed I was with the behavior of a zipper one of my dresses when I was on my last lecture trip, I think I must tell you that my new traveling wardrobe, which depends almost entirely on zippers for its usefulness, is proving most satisfactory. There is no doubt about it, if one is in a hurry, zippers which work are a great blessing. The perfection of this particular make of fastener certainly should seem important to the busy woman.

Boy Calls His Girl Friend A "Temperamental Number"

By Caroline Chatfield.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

Your articles on domestic tranquility are very fine as is your advice to the girls, but I can't find advice from you as to how a boy can win his girl. I am confronted with this problem: The girl knows I like her, admits to others that she likes me yet she refuses my bids to dances and isn't at all friendly. How to deal with such a temperamental number puzzles me.

FRUSTRATED BOY FRIEND.

ANSWER:—Buddy, first I should tell you that you are barking up the wrong tree at present and had better move on. No use to kid yourself or let your friends kid you. However temperamental a girl may be, she doesn't like you if she refuses to give you a dance date and looks over your head when she accidentally runs into you.

Wrapping Gifts, Half the Fun Of Xmas

By Elizabeth McRae Boykin

I've been wrapping presents all morning. And feeling very Christmasy indeed about the whole business.

My musical sister I've a hand-picked group of records which I've wrapped in silver and tied with wide white ribbon gay with red musical notes.

For my engineer brother-in-law who adores to fiddle with his tools, I have one of those tin cash boxes with compartments in which I have the most impressive assortment of nails, screws, hooks and other hardware notions you ever saw. This is wrapped in builders' paper, tied with surveyors' cord with a "bouquet" of toy tools from the five and ten.

For my scholarly mother, there's a pack of books on the European crisis which I know will go to bed with her many a night through the winter. I'm sticking in a subscription to the best of the "digest" magazines for good measure. And wrapping the whole thing in guess what? Newspaper—because she does on them. All finished off with a delicious big red satin bow.

To Glorify Soup.
For my domestic sister-in-law, have a soup tureen to preside over her delicious soup suppers. She's famous for her fine soups and there's nothing like a tureen to glorify even an everyday soup. This is packed in a box spangled with silver stars and tied with a spanking silver bow. If I have time, I'm going to look for some bright little artificial vegetables to tie into the bow. The kind we wore on our laps a season or so back.

For my best friend with a house full of children, I have a double waffle griddle which makes two big round waffles at one throw. This I'm wrapping in a nursery design crepe paper, tying it with red ribbon with six ends of ribbon hanging down, each end tied to a big, gilded walnut shell, one for each child. Each shell has the nut meat taken out and replaced with a miniature toy and then the two halves of the shell are tied together again. I've been keeping my eye out for weeks collecting toys enough to go in walnut shell—I have one for each of the children.

Are you wondering how to trim the tree or decorate the house? Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for my new bulletin "Make Your Own Christmas Decorations." It's replete with festive ideas. Send request to Miss Boykin, care The Atlanta Constitution. (Copyright, 1938, for The Constitution.)

Newest Opening Is "Atlanta Three-Bid"

By Harold Sharpsteen.

This is the eight of a series of articles covering the complete range of opening suit bids.

ATLANTA THREE-BID.

The new 1938 revamped Culbertson three-bid for rubber and tournament play, recently announced from Culbertson headquarters in New York as "not yet completely official, but substantially what it will be," is the "Atlanta Three-Bid" with minor modifications for responses.

The solid suit principle, one of the outstanding features of the Atlanta bid, is the basis on the 1939 three-suit opening.

THREE TYPE HANDS.

1. A suit, at least seven long, containing at least 10 trump honors; no outside strength required. S—4; H—A Q J 10 7 5 3; D—8 5 3; C—9 2.

2. A suit, at least six long, 100 honors; some outside strength. S—A K J 10 6 3; H—8; D—Q 8 3; C—A 7 5.

3. A suit, at least six long, 100 honors, good outside strength. S—K Q J 10 7 5; H—6 2; D—K Q 4; C—A 7 5.

While opening three-bids may be made with weak, medium or strong type hands, they will, as a rule indicate not less than six and usually not more than 7 1-2 winners. The set-up suit, however, is always present.

SOLID MINOR SUIT.

Ely Culbertson favors going a step farther in the case of minor suit opening bids of three. He is recommending that "a minor suit three-bid be absolutely solid" . . . six positive winners in the bid suit, as:

S—K 6 3; H—7 5; D—Q 4; C—A K Q.

AIMED AT NOTRUMP.

Aimed directly at three notrump, Culbertson is of the opinion a three minor-suit opening should always guarantee six sure tricks once partner reaches the hand.

Theoretically, the strong suit requirements appear logical but may prove a trifle rigid for practical pre-emptive purposes, especially when not vulnerable.

Slight changes recommended in requirements for three-bid responses for 1939 will follow. "Til tomorrow . . .

For Runabout Wear

By Barbara Bell

The details that make this design so becoming to full figures are: bodice gathers that ensure a comfortable fit over the bust—no tightness, no bulkiness; the fitted waistline, lifted in the front to give an added effect of slimmness; the plain skirt, that fits so smoothly over the hips. The short sleeves have pleats to make them graceful, and minimize the size of one's arms.

The smooth shoulder-yokes are just as becoming as they are smart. This is an excellent style for all-round, runabout wear—hasty drives to the station. It's very quick and easy to make; the pattern includes a detailed sew chart. Challis, jersey and flat crepe are smart materials for this design. When you discover how well it fits, how slimming it is, you'll repeat it more than twice!

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1656-B is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 4 3/8 yards of 39-inch material. 1 yard of bias.

Price of pattern 15 cents. Do not send stamps.

Five-Way Frock

By Lillian Mae

Pattern 4827.

Girls, the suspender dress is a passport to chic for immediate wear and spring too—and Pattern 4827 offers not only a winsome suspender-frock design, but also a shirt-waister style that's equally smart! In fact, this simple Lillian Mae creation sponsors five different variations, just as pictured. Look—a suspender-girdle can be laced up coquettishly, or gaily button-trimmed. Or the suspenders and girdle may be separate, to adorn the shirtwaist dress. Then too—this very attractive dress may have a wide contrasting girdle or a self-belt—and long sleeves instead of short ones. Don't you love the eight-gore "swing" skirt and the choice of two swanky necklines?

Pattern 4827 is available in junior and misses' sizes 10, 12, 14, 16 and 18. Size 16, suspender dress, takes 2 1/8 yards 54-inch fabric; blouse, 1 1/2 yards 36-inch fabric.

Send 15 cents in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

Write today for your copy of Lillian Mae Winter Pattern Book, and be smartly dressed with economy! Neurotic Usually Suffers From Functional Derangement

By Dr. William Brady.

Here is a phenomenon which the neurotic, malnourished, uneducated or misinformed individual (be he university graduate or plain moron) cannot understand, namely, that a healthy, carefree, normal happy-go-lucky person, eating freely of whatever the table affords, regardless of its digestibility, enjoying a good meal, in cheerful company, without concern about calories, starches or the condition of the bowel, generally has little or no trouble with his digestion or his bowels. On the other hand, the neurotic himself almost invariably suffers from functional derangement of stomach, intestine or colon, and as a rule depends more or less on one or another artificial stimulant to aid to these functions to keep him going—or what he childishly imagines is an aid.

The fundamental anatomical or physiological fact which the average college-trained individual fails to comprehend is that the voluntary or conscious cerebro-spinal nervous system does not control any part of the alimentary function. The action of the bowel is controlled entirely by the unconscious, involuntary, autonomic or automatic "sympathetic" nervous mechanism, the same automatic mechanism as that which controls the action of the heart and the lungs, the same as that which controls or regulates the excretion of sweat and the cooling of the body. No one has any serious concern about "regulating" his heart beat or breathing, for of course every one knows that these vegetative functions are automatically controlled and require no consideration or attention—indeed they are best controlled when one forgets them altogether.

The alimentary or bowel function or functions are under the same control as the other vegetative or vital functions and require no more thought or consideration on the part of the individual than does the beating of the heart. The only reason why the badly misinformed laymen cannot grasp this truth is that he has been brought up on almanac and testimonial hokum which the nostrum and quackery interests have fed the public for many years. The layman assumed the hokum was true, since the medical profession never unbent enough to question or deny it, until the last few years. For that matter, there are still a considerable number of quacks in the ranks of regular medicine who, when they have no idea what ails the patient or what should be done about it, prescribe some kind of physic with the avowed or deal-piled assurance that a "good cleaning out" ought to help.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

She Likes It Raw.
I am not in a position to choose my food in the way I should like to do, but have to take what I find on the bill of fare. However, I have found that wheat germ does all and more than you say. I use the kind you recommend—a pound costs 20 cents. I take about four dessertspoonsful raw with milk, and sometimes mix some in with soup, pudding or cereal. Since I started this my nervous irritability is less and I am not so grouchy and friends say I look more alive. (Miss A. C.)

Answer—An excellent way to supplement the ordinary diet with vitamin B complex. Nearly every body would enjoy better health and vitality if such use of wheat germ were universal—or if every body returned to the use of plain wheat in place of refined wheat products.

NOSE STUFFY HARD TO BREATHE

In head colds, mucous membrane of nose and throat is irritated, puffed-up—air passages become smaller—it's hard to breathe. Put 2 drops Penetro Nose Drops in each nostril—feel the difference. That's because the astringent-like action of the ephedrine and essential oils shrinks and cools swollen membranes, eases irritation and discomfort—you have more room to breathe—every breath brings a feeling of relief. Be sure to always ask for quick-acting Penetro Nose Drops. Sold at all drug-stores everywhere.

PENETRO NOSE DROPS

Quick, Comforting Relief. Saves Money. Easily Mixed. No matter what you might spend for medicine, you couldn't get quicker, better relief from coughs that start from cold than this simple home mixture gives. It takes but a moment to prepare—it's so easy a child could do it. And it saves real money. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking is needed. Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any drugist. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make a full pint of really splendid cough remedy and you get out four times as much for your money. It never spoils, lasts a family a long time and children love its taste. And for quick, blessed relief, you'll say it is truly wonderful. It has a remarkable action. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Pinex is a concentrated compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way. —(adv.)

Mother, Mix Your Own Cough Remedy. It's Better

Josh Holland Calls to See Dulcie And Jane Immediately Likes Him

By RUBY M. AYRES.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE: Jane Brooker's mother dies soon after her godmother bequeaths her 5,000 pounds to be held in trust for five years until she is 21. Pamela, a year older, takes her mother's place in the household. Dulcie, the eldest, is the blonde beauty of the family. Just as Jane gets her legacy, Justin Montford returns to England from Canada to visit his uncle, Dr. Bingham, the Brookes' neighbor and physician. He meets Jane when the old Brookes car stops suddenly and he, out for a walk, discovers the only trouble is the gas tank is empty. Walking with her to get gasoline, he learns that she loves poetry and is superstitious, particularly about seeing the new moon through glass or reflected in water. They see the moon in a stream as they cross a bridge. Pamela invites Gavin to lunch. He tells her that when his parents died while he was at school he went to Canada and tried several things but with little success. Suddenly he asks her to marry him. She insists he use his money to start a business so they can marry soon. Dulcie returns from London, saying Josh Holland, a wealthy man of 50, wants to marry her. She makes opportunities to be alone with Gavin, even asking him to drive her to a near-by town, saying she is afraid alone in the fog. Jane is jealous and Pamela was her to see Dulcie. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

INSTALLMENT XV.

"I suppose you've told them all about our adventure last night," Dulcie said. She was the only one who appeared to be perfectly at her ease. "It really isn't at all bad at The George," she informed them. "There was a ripping fog fire and the food was quite good. We had a bottle of wine, too, just to cheer ourselves up. I was quite sorry when they sent to tell us that the car was ready."

Pamela stared at her. Was she doing this purposely, she wondered? Just to hurt Jane—just to impudently show how little she cared whether Jane was hurt or not?

"Must take you to The George to dinner one night, Jane," Gavin said quickly. "We'll go when the weather improves, and—Dulcie stirred three lumps of sugar into her coffee, perhaps purposely allowing the wrap to slip from her throat a little in order to show its slender whiteness. "I should like to go," Jane said.

"The sooner Dulcie marries him and settles down the better I shall be pleased," Pamela said tartly. "She upsets the entire household and every one in it. She ought to be ashamed of herself."

"It's her home as much as ours," Jane said. "As much as ours! More than ours, you'd imagine, the way she behaves. Why should she stay in bed and be waited on any more than you or I? Why should she calmly annex everything and every one as it—"

She always been allowed to do it—I suppose that's why," she fumbled in the pocket of her frock. "Have you a cigarette?" she asked.

Pamela pointed across the room. "There ought to be some over there—unless Dulcie had taken them, but she won't have done that, because when she came in last night she showed me some Gavin had given her—quite expensive cigarettes—I expect she asked for them."

Jane forced a little laugh. "Aren't we getting rather cat-ty?" she inquired, but Pamela merely answered:

"If you like to be so soft about her, you can, but it's not my way. She's absolutely selfish and heartless, and if you're not very careful she'll smash up your life."

Jane's pale face was streaked with a painful flush. "If you're talking about Gavin—and I suppose you must be," she said with forced calm, "he's not rich enough for Dulcie. Besides—he's mine," she added.

Pamela shrugged her shoulders. "Well, you know your own business best," she answered. "Only don't say I didn't warn you."

She began to clear the breakfast things, and Jane said:

"I'll do that. I want something to do." She had never wanted occupation so badly in her life before. It seemed the one thing in the world which would keep her sane. She felt like a whirling top which, once it is allowed to run down, will collapse in a helpless heap.

Gavin had not kissed her goodbye; she tried not to remember that, or to imagine there was anything unusual about the way in which he had said, "Well, goodbye"—almost as if he were glad to be leaving her.

Gavin had never been demonstrative, and she was forced to admit that neither had he ever said that he was in love with her. Theirs had been—outwardly, at all events—an affectionate friendship based on mutual liking and understanding. Or was there any truth in Pamela's blunt assertion that the time he had known about the money and that he was just a fortune-hunter?

Jane stopped for a moment in her task of packing up cups and plates.

"What is the matter with me?" she asked herself in despair. "Why do I listen when people say unkind, wicked things?"

Dulcie's sweetly-insistent voice called to her.

"Jane! Are you there, Jane?"

"Yes."

"Well, just iron this jumper for me, there's a pet. I'd do it myself, but you know I'm no good at jobs of that sort, and I shall only scorch it and burn my fingers as well."

Jane went out into the hall to find Dulcie at the top of the stairs, still in the pink wrap.

"Here, catch!" she said, and the silk jumper came floating down into Jane's hands.

"Do it now," Dulcie said calmly, "I'm waiting for it."

Jane walked into the kitchen.

"Why didn't I refuse?" she asked herself. "Why didn't I tell her to do it herself?" But she knew that it was because she had always been in the habit of doing what Dulcie wanted—that they all had.

She carefully pressed out the little frills and the short, puffed sleeves. Was this the jumper Dulcie had worn last night, she wondered. An she suddenly seemed to see the old-fashioned, low-ceilinged dining-room at The George, with its big open fireplace, and her sister and Gavin, perfectly happy in each other's company, quite indifferent to the fog.

And then she thought of that day when she and Gavin had lunched together in the little parlor where the gray parrot had called out "Sweetheart!" and she had told Gavin that she believed in comradeship more than she believed in sentiment.

Had he believed her, she wondered, and asked herself whether perhaps it would not have been better for them both if she had been quite honest and admitted how well she loved him?

And then on the heels of that thought came the realization that now it would be almost impossible to tell him, and at once she was remembering a woman with whom she had been friends, and who had been forced to divorce her husband, and she had said to Jane when it was all over:

"We shook hands across the lawyer's table, and he said he hoped I would forgive him, and all the time I was wondering why I had never been able to tell him that he was everything in the world to me and always will be. But, of course, I shall never be able to tell him now."

Not in the least a parallel case with her own and Gavin's, and yet in a queer way they seemed alike—for perhaps she, too, had lost her opportunity.

"I'm not the type to say romantic things," she told herself humbly. "If I looked like Dulcie it would be different."

The little jumper was finished and she carried it up to her sister's room.

"Oh, thanks," Dulcie said carelessly. She was seated at the dressing table making up her eyebrows.

"The light is so bad in this room," she complained. Jane watched her silently. Through the mirror she could see herself reflected behind Dulcie's shoulder.

"Nobody would ever think we were sisters," she thought.

"I wonder what you will think of Josh?" Dulcie said with a note of amusement. "He's quite different from any men you know—much smarter, and more of a man of the world."

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—(AP)—

The buying appetite sharpened perceptibly in today's stock market and leading aircraft, motors, steels, rubbers, rails and specialties cooked up a further rally of fractions to more than 2 points.

With hopes buoyed by continued cheerful business prospects, and apparently less troublesome foreign affairs, favored issues climbed over additional year-end tax selling and profit-taking and posted a number of new highs for the year, particularly in aviation which were strong throughout.

The market put on a substantial rising performance in the first hour, then backed away on dwindling volume until the final lap when activity quickened and lagging quotations generally returned to finish around top levels of the day.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 4 1/4 of a point at

50.8, the best advance for any session since November 30. Transfers totaled 1,093,550 shares, against 899,305 the day before.

Stimulating factors for the rally to more than a point in the curb were Electric Bond & Share,

Lockheed Aircraft, American Cy-pared with 195,000 Monday.

DEACON IN TROUBLE—CHURCH PLANS TRIAL

Gossip will flourish at the Belmont Methodist church near Decatur Friday night when its members present a mock trial in which Malindy Johnson is suing Deacon John Brown and charging him with kissing her twice on the main street of Lithonia, Ga.

The entertainment will begin at 8 o'clock. Characters will be prominent residents of Decatur, Lithonia and DeKalb county. The church is on Covington road about three miles from Decatur.

Plans are afoot to equip all South Wales tramp steamers with powerful radio receiving sets for use of crews.

MICHIGAN SEEKS FUND FOR TYPHOID CARRIERS

State Health Commissioner Don W. Gudakunst has announced he will ask the Michigan legislature to appropriate money for persons bearing the disease that afflicted "Typhoid Mary" Mallon, who died in New York City recently.

He estimates there are 3,000 such typhoid carriers in Michigan. He wants the legislature to make available money for their cure and compensation. A similar request to lawmakers two years ago went unheeded.

CONCEPCION, Chile, Dec. 13. (UP)—Ten workers were killed today in an explosion which wrecked the Crista shaft of the Schwager coal mine here. The blast was caused by a miner who lighted a cigarette.

25 Years on Atlanta Police Force, Hornsby Strives To Make It Best

"I'd like the Atlanta police force to be the best in the country," Chief of Police M. A. Hornsby said yesterday as he marked his 25th year as a member of the department.

Seated in his office at headquarters, Chief Hornsby, who was sworn in as a supernumerary December 13, 1913, and has been on active duty since, figuratively looked down the years and said: "I think our force is one of the best now, but I am not completely satisfied. I want it to be the top force in the United States. We've had a few crooks in the department, that's true, but I believe they've been weeded out."

Chief Hornsby advocates physical fitness as a major point in building a high-grade department. He sets an example by doing exercises at noon every day. He lists courage, honesty and fairness, as well as physical fitness, in his formula for a good officer.

Chief Hornsby is a churchman and a Sunday school teacher. "I see no reason why a man can't be a Christian gentleman and a good officer at the same time," he declared.

The anniversary day passed with the chief "on duty as usual."

FORREST TURNER 'SEEN' IN CONYERS

Man Tells Sheriff He Spoke To Fugitive.

Forrest Turner, will-o-the-wisp Tattallan prison escape, hopped up in Conyers yesterday afternoon, Sheriff Floyd Cook, of Rockdale county, reported last night.

Sheriff Cook telephoned Atlanta police and the state highway patrol headquarters to be on the lookout for Turner, who was seen in Conyers at about 3 o'clock.

The sheriff said he was "positive" it was Turner because a man who knew Turner told the official he not only saw him, but talked with him.

This informant, according to Sheriff Cook, said that Turner planned a "job in Conyers within a day or two."

A short time after Turner's appearance on the main street of Conyers, Emmett Cooper Jr., traveling salesman for an Atlanta drug firm, reported theft of his automobile.

The car bore South Carolina license plates.

The Department of Agriculture estimated in 1937 there were 123,000,000 rats in the United States, half of them on farms.

BROOKLYN COUPLE WINS WALTZ PRIZE

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Smith Awarded 3-Month Film Contract.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lawrence Smith, of Brooklyn, N. Y., won a three-month movie contract in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Great Waltz Competition" at the finals Monday night in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria hotel in New York.

The contest was sponsored in Atlanta by The Constitution.

Twelve of the most talented amateur waltz teams in the United States, including Mr. and Mrs. Spero Alexander, of Memphis, danced before seven prominent judges. The competition narrowed to the Smiths and Miss Katherine Budel and Herman Bodenfors, of California, and these two teams were brought out on the floor three times before the judges finally awarded first prize to the Brooklyn couple.

Louise Rainer, star of "The Great Waltz," attended the finals with her playmate-husband, Clifford Odets. Howard Dietz presented the contract to the winning team.

ANDREWS INDICATES PAY-HOUR REVISION

Chief Says Congress May Exempt Those in $150-$300 a Month Class.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13. (AP)—Elmer F. Andrews, the wage-hour administrator, suggested today that congress might consider exempting employees receiving a certain guaranteed salary from overtime provisions of the fair labor standards act.

The sort of employee he has in mind, he made clear, is the chap getting around $150 to $300 a month or more who is not an executive, or a professional worker, but can take a little time off for a fishing trip whenever he has the time without having his pay docked.

His legal staff, he added, may turn up with some clarifying amendments regarding this situation.

For some weeks the wage-hour administrator has been looking for a violation of the law under circumstances which might lead to a clear-cut test of the act's constitutionality. He indicated he had found suitable cases in South Carolina and New York, asserting he hoped to have material ready to bring court actions in those states within the next few days.

BOY IS ABSOLVED IN FATHER'S DEATH

Struck Parent, Who Was Beating Youth's Mother.

Details of a family fight during which a 14-year-old boy fatally injured his father with a blow on the head in order to protect his mother were outlined at a coroner's inquest at Alpharetta yesterday called to investigate the death of Cicero Treadway.

Treadway's battered body was found early yesterday on the floor of his home, about two miles north of Alpharetta on the Cumming highway. Neighbors said police help was needed before Mrs. Treadway would permit its removal to an undertaking establishment.

The jury found that he died at the hands of his son, Ford, who struck him on the left temple with a heavy piece of wood. It was termed "justifiable homicide," however, on the ground that Treadway was beating his wife at the time, and no arrests were made.

RIVERS TO DEDICATE HOSPITAL PROJECT

Four G. S. C. W. Buildings Also To Be Accepted at Ceremonies.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Dec. 13. (AP)—The state will dedicate a $4,000,000 hospital building program here tomorrow.

Exercises will be conducted at the $290,000 addition to the Jones Medical building. Governor Rivers will speak and other state officials will participate.

The Governor also will speak at dedication of four new buildings at Georgia State College for Women. The structures are a music building, health and physical education building, teacher training building and a new dormitory.

Legislators are expected to attend the dedication and inspect the expansion work at the hospital, already started under WPA projects. The $4,000,000 PWA project calls for new construction, while the WPA work is remodeling and modernizing present structures.

MASTER MASONS TO CONFER DEGREE

College Park Lodge To Conduct Ceremony.

College Park Lodge No. 454, F. & A. M., will confer the master's degree on a class of candidates Friday night, according to an announcement made yesterday by G. V. Ledbetter, newly-elected worshipful master of the lodge. The ceremony will be conducted by all past masters of the organization.

Plans also are being made by the Masonic group for a joint communication with Hapeville and East Point lodges at the College Park lodge Tuesday, December 27, when William M. Sapp, grand master of Georgia Masons, will deliver the principal address.

Installed as officers of College Park at ceremonies Monday night, in addition to Worshipful Master Ledbetter, were J. W. Stephenson, senior warden; R. E. O'Kelley, junior warden; C. V. Maddox, secretary; Joe Bazemore, treasurer; George C. Dean, senior deacon; T. H. Fitzpatrick, junior deacon; Joe Faulkner, senior steward; C. H. Williams, junior steward; W. T. Hubbard, tiler, and T. L. Mewborn, chaplain. C. V. Maddox, retiring worshipful master, was presented with a gold watch as an appreciation for his services. The presentation was made in behalf of the lodge by George W. Whitman, past master.
